AN IRISH GROWL

Welfare Failings Assailed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Democratic-dominated legislative fact-finding committee today accused the Reagan administration of illegally blocking full implementation of the state's new welfare reform law and called for an attorney general's investigation.

"Gross mismanagement, unprecedented secrecy and deliberately unlawful actions on the part of the state Department of Social Welfare have prevented the proper implementation of the Welfare Reform Act of 1971," the committee charged.

"As a consequence, numerous lawsuits have resulted, administrative confusion has prevailed in county welfare departments and millions of tax dollars have been wasted."

The allegations were contained in a 45-page report of the special Assembly-Senate Subcommittee in Implementation of Welfare Reform appointed last year to investigate how the Reagan administration was putting the new act into operation.

Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, committee chairman, said the report was signed by all five Democratic members but by none of the three Republicans.

Beilenson, lead author of the reform negotiated last summer with Gov. Ronald Reagan, said he suggested to Republican members that they not sign the report so as to "not unnecessarily incur the governor's wrath."

The strongly worded document accused state Social Welfare Director Robert Carleson and his top deputies of issuing administrative regulations contrary to terms of the compromise reform and of illegally reducing welfare benefits to the poor.

The report recommended that Attorney General Evelle J. Younger investigate "possible misconduct among top state Department of Social Welfare officials in violation of existing state laws."

The committee charged that "inexcusable incompetence" on the part of state welfare officials in improperly notifying recipients that their aid was to be reduced or terminated will have "wiped out" as much as $25 million in reform savings.

The administration was charged with "rushing" to implement parts of the reform it favored "without due regard for legal requirements while provisions initiated by the legislature have received little or no action."

For instance, the committee said, "only a handful" of jobs have been created with the $9 million earmarked for this purpose while no one has received child care services aimed at

Water Rationing Looms For Marin

Little Rainfall Expected To Refill Reservoirs

By PAT ANGLE

Marin Municipal Water District customers can expect some form of water rationing this summer unless the county experiences heavy rains by May 1, a district official said today.

But J. Dietrich Stroeh, manager of engineering, warned there is not much chance sufficient rain will fall in the next six weeks to make rationing unnecessary. "Barring some very unseasonable weather, I think it is safe to predict the district will have to undertake some kind of curtailment program this year," he told the Independent-Journal.

Stroeh said the water district would first try a voluntary rationing program and go to enforced rationing only if necessary water conservation is not achieved voluntarily.

Affected by rationing would be the County of Marin, Hamilton Air Force Base, most Marin cities except Novato, large commercial users and the district's approximately 50,000 residential customers.

At present, the engineering manager said the district's five reservoirs are about 75 per cent full, containing approximately 12 billion gallons of a 17-billion-gallon capacity. For the district to have sufficient water storage to carry it through next year "in good shape," Stroeh said about 15 inches of rain would be needed, although a heavy fall of four or five inches in 24 hours could do the job "because it would provide very fast runoff into the reservoirs."

Based on historical data, Stroeh said the district can expect about 11 inches of rain from March 1 to the end of the rainy season, but added the great majority of that amount usually falls during March which has been sunny and warm this year.

After March 31 a few inches max fall in drizzles and sprinkles, but heavy storms are unlikely, he said. According to Stroeh, the long-range weather forecast for the coming month shows some kind of storm at the end of this month, but "it would have to be a terrific storm to provide the water we need."

Unless district reservoirs are filled to 15 million gallons by April 1, the district staff will ask its board of directors to call for voluntary rationing, probably beginning May 1, he told the I-J. It would be the first rationing program in the water district since 1948.

Although details of such a program have not been worked out, Stroeh said customers would probably be asked to curtail water use in every way possible. For example, he said irrigation could be limited to certain days and customers encouraged to water by hand rather than automatic sprinkler.

Large users, like cities and the air base, would receive suggestions on how to reduce their water use, he added.

"It's possible we might even start patroling throughout the district, warning customers

Nixon Calls For Busing Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today asked Congress to prohibit courts from issuing any new orders to require busing of school children until July 1, 1973.

Under the terms of the President's proposed moratorium on racial busing, which he outlined, first to the nation in a broadcast Thursday night, the courts could not order the transportation of any student who was not already being bused, nor could a student be bused to a school where he was not already assigned.

But Nixon's plan would not roll back busing orders already on the books. Nor would it prevent communities from voluntarily adopting plans involving the transportation of students.

In a 17-page message to the House and Senate, Nixon spelled out details of the anti-busing steps he sketched in the speech in which he said some courts have gone too far "in ordering busing, for desegregation purposes.

The President coupled his proposed busing moratorium with a proposal which he named the Equal Educational Opportunities Act.

The Equal Opportunity bill would prohibit any state, community or school district from denying an eual chance at education to any student because of race or color.

The proposed measure defined equal opportunity under criteria that are less sweeping than applied by many federal courts.

The measure would specifically state that racial balance in schools was not required.

In the event of violation of the act, the bill would establish a priority of remedies which the courts would be required to follow.

"In the past, the courts have largely been left to their own devices in determing appropriate remedies in school desegregation cases," Nixon said. "The

First Formal Step Taken For Regional Park District Try

A group interested in saving Marin's scenic open space from development has applied to the county Local Agency Formation Commission for creation of a regional park district.

The application was submitted by a group calling itself People for Parks and Open Space and will be considered by the commission April 12.

As described in the group's application, the district would be a single-purpose agency confining its activities to acquisition of open space and development of related facilities such as hiking trails.

A five-member board, elected from the five supervisorial districts, would set priorities for land purchase and would have no direct connection with county government.

Under existing state legislation, the regional district — which would include only Marin County — would need a 50 per cent favorable countywide vote once it gets by the formation commission.

Proponents of the plan, including Carol Staley of Corte Madera who has spearheaded the drive for approval, say they are hoping to bring it before the voters in November.

They claim that the district's tax rate of up to 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation would not be subject to the same political pressures as it would if the board of supervisors created a special district.

If the full 10 cent tax rate were imposed, it would raise about $700,000 per year, based on this year's total assessed valuation in Marin. To the owner of a $35,000 home, that would mean an $8.75 increase in taxes.

Currently, two other proposals are being studied as possible means of acquiring open space. One would have the supervisors create a special district, much like the transit district, and the other a special

China's Red Flag Flying More Over Latin America

By JAMES NELSON GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

The red flag of Communist China waves in a number of Latin American capitals these days — and the number is expected to grow in the months ahead.

For the first time since 1949, Peking is again in favor in many Latin countries. Both Chile and Peru reestablished relations with Peking last year. And already in 1972, Argentina and Mexico have taken the step.

That brings to six the number of Western Hemisphere nations now doing diplomatic business with the Chinese mainland — a tally that includes Cuba, which has been there throughout the 1960's, and Canada, which resumed relations in late 1970. Guyana is expected to follow soon.

President Nixon's overtures to Peking, beginning last August with announcement of the secret Kissinger mission to the Chinese capital and culminating with his recent visit to Peking, obviously played a part in the growing acceptance of Peking in Latin America.

But there is also a desire on the part of Latin Americans for the opening up of mainland China. Numerous Latin American statesmen, newspapermen, and others have visited Peking in recent years, returning to their own lands with reports on Chinese life and progress.

Many of these visitors, representing widely differing points of political view at home, argued, as did one Mexican editor, that "to exclude China and its 800 million people from the family of nations is folly."

The move toward diplomatic ties also follows a period of growing trade relations between the Americas and Communist China. Argentine wheat, Mexican cotton, and Brazilian coffee were shipped to the Chinese mainland at various times throughout the 1960s. A steady flow of light Chinese manufacturers — batteries, machine tools, canned food — has been turning up around Latin America in recent years.

One corollary of the move toward diplomatic relations was the Latin-American support for Peking's entry into the United Nations — a move that was accompanied in some instances by votes to unseat Taiwan's Nationalist Chinese government.

The new surge of Chinese interest in the Americas is of fairly recent origin. During some of the years of the cultural revolution on the Chinese mainland, the Chinese appeared to lose interest in Latin America. There were even complaints in Cuba during that period that the Chinese were not as interested in the island as they ought to be.

Indeed Sino-Cuban relations have not always been overly friendly. Cuban Prime Minister

Half-Million Turn Out In Dacca For Mrs. Gandhi

DACCA (UPI)—An estimated 50,000 Bengalis today welcomed Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on her first visit to Bangladesh since its liberation by Indian troops. Heavy security precaktions were enforced because of fears of a possible assassination attempt.

But there was no trouble even though crowds broke through police cordons at the Dacca race course where Mrs. Gandhi and Bangladesh Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman spoke of the past and the future. Police used bamboo canes to flail a path through the spectators trying to touch Mrs. Gandhi and Rahman.

In her speech only a few hours after her arrival in Dacca on an official visit, Mrs. Gandhi said indpendence is not an end in itself but rather the means to an end—"to a better, happier society."

"You have to choose your own path, your own methods how to proceed, how to achieve your goal," Mrs. Gandhi said. "We in India have chosen a path, but it is for you to choose yours...it is for you to carve out the path for yourself..."

Mrs. Gandhi stressed the theme of reconstruction of the former east wing of Pakistan, which won independence from the regime in West Pakistan

Two Banks Increase Prime Interest Rate

NEW YORK (UPI)—First National City Bank, the nation's second largest, and Irving Trust Co., announced Friday they had raised their floating prime rates to 4 3-4 per cent, an increase of 1-4 per cent.

The move had been expected in view of continued advances in short-term rates on which these floating rates are based.

Tam High Teacher Questioned On Southern Marin Bombings

By DAVID DIETZ

The case of Kenneth A. Anderson, a teacher whom the Tamalpais High School District wants to fire, took a dramatic turn yesterday when attorneys for the district questioned him about possible involvement in three Southern Marin bombings last year, the Independent-Journal learned.

Anderson, 31, suspended from teaching duties at Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley, denied any part in the blasts, which occurred at the school itself and at two Bank of America branches, according to his attorney, Carl B. Shapiro.

The inquiry came as Anderson gave a deposition in prelude to a court hearing on district charges against him. Until this time, it had been known only that the district accused the teacher of generally disobeying

Media Not Using Law On Secrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Although reporters and broadcasters were in the forefront of those pushing for its enactment, the media has made little use of the Freedom of Information Law during its first four years of operation, a congressional report said today.

For the most part, according to statistics, it has been commercial interests which have taken advantage of the law, enacted on July 4, 1967 as a means of opening up to public inspection most records of the government.

Chairman William E. Moorhead, D-Pa., of the House Government Information subcommittee released the results of a Library of Congress study as his panel resumed hearings on its review of the law.

Scheduled to testify today were working newsmen who have had experiences in using the act.

In analyzing implementation of the act, the Library of Congress concentrated on formal requests for information made of 29 federal departments and agencies between July 4, 1967, the day the law took effect, and July 4, 1971.

The identification of requestors was limited to those whose requests for data was refused by the agency. The total numbered 1,413. Of that figure, only 90 requests, or 6 per cent of the total, were filed by representatives of the media.

Tunney 'Suspicious' Of ITT Memo Destruction

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., believes it was "very suspicious" that International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. ordered the destruction of documents in its Washington office in response to charges by columnist Jack Anderson.

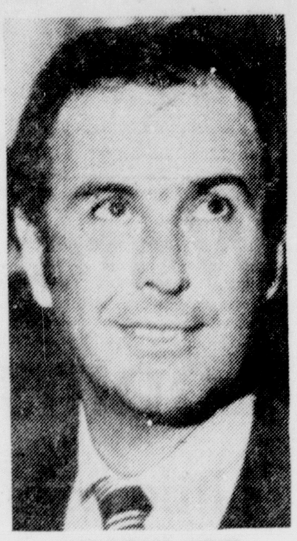

ITT officials told the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday that "several bags" of documents were run through a paper shredder for fear they might come into Anderson's possession and be "misused and misconstrued."

Tunney said it appeared to be "an attempt to destroy documents relevant to this inquiry."

"It looks very suspicious and very bad," he said. "Now we will never know. It's a shocking thing."

Anderson published an office memo, attributed to ITT lobbyist Dita D. Beard, which linked settlement of an antitrust case against ITT with an ITT pledge to help underwrite costs of the Republican National Convention in San Diego.

ITT officers, Attorney General-designate Richard G. Kleindienst and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell have denied the charges.

HOWARD J. AIBEL
Memos to shredder

Kleindienst told a group of federal judges in Denver Thursday night that the memo was "without credibility" and had "no relation to the facts."

On Monday a special seven-man subcommittee headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., will go to Denver to take testimony from Mrs. Beard. She is in a hospital being treated for a heart condition.

Howard J. Aibel, ITT senior vice president and general counsel, denied at Thursday's hearings that there was any wrong doing in destroying the documents.

Aibel said a review of ITT's Washington files was ordered as soon as it was learned Anderson was in possession of the memorandum attributed to Mrs. Beard. He said no copies of the memorandum were found in the files.

The witness said a fellow employe who helped Mrs. Beard go through her files was John Ryan, a neighbor of Kleindienst in suburban McLean, Va.

"So there were just those three —Mrs. Beard, Mr. Ryan and the shredder," observed Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

FBI Agents Fail To Place Harrisburg 7 At The Scenes

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)— FBI agents testified Thursday about the vandalizing of several draft boards on June 18, 1970, but did not place any of the Harrisburg Seven defendants at the scenes of the crime.

A single-spaced page of anti-war urging was found on June 18, 1970, on a counter of a vandalized draft board in Dover, Del., and on a desk of a similarly hit draft board in Wilmington, Del., FBI agents testified.

The antiwar literature read:

"We believe that draft boards are charnel houses to be destroyed...when violence and death rule, only destruction can bring new life."

The government was driving ahead at the end of the eighth week of the trial of the Harrisburg Seven in its effort to prove such depredations of draft records were part of a three-fold plot to publicize the movement against the Vietnam War in 1970.

The other two alleged conspiratorial devices were the kidnaping of presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and the blowing up of Washington heating systems in wintertime.

Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and six other activists are accused of performing 35 overt acts in furtherance of the plot.

Proof of carrying out any of these acts by any of the seven is enough, under the law, for a finding of guilty of conspiracy for all defendants. The government was expected to wind up its case late next week.

There was testimony that a Georgetown, Del., board also was vandalized that June day. Three defendants, Sister Elizabeth McAlister and Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Scoblick, a former priest and nun, are accused of taking part in all three raids in one of the overt acts.

However, Thursday's testimony by law officers placed none of the seven defendants at the scenes of destruction. The Scoblicks were identified as being seen at a "surfacing" rally in Wilmington on Aug. 7, 1970, at which a statement was passed out containing 300 names of persons accepting responsibility for the break-ins.

But the names of the Scoblicks did not appear on the statement, they did not say anything in public, and Federal Judge R. Dixon Herman told the jury that the fact the FBI had taken their picture there had no implication except that "they were there."

Brooke Backs Nixon Reelection

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., who has found fault with the Nixon administration's domestic policies, said Wednesday he supports the President for reelection "because he is taking us in the direction of a generation of peace."

"I am not satisfied witp the President's civil rights record, but his foreign policy has been just short of magnificent," Brooke said at a news conference.

Brooke cited Nixon's trip to China, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, the nuclear non-proliferation treaty and forthcoming meetings with Soviet leaders as Nixon's accomplishments during his first term.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

More Irish Deaths

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Two persons died and six were wounded in violent incidents late last night, including three British soldiers injured in a mine explosion.

The deaths of a young woman in a bomb explosion and an unidentified man in a shooting incident brought to 278 the number of victims since violence erupted in Northern Ireland, August 1969, a British army spokesman said.

The woman was killed when she entered an underground public lavatory in Lurgan and a bomb inside exploded. Her husband waiting for her outside was injured, the spokesman said.

On a deserted street in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne section, a man was found shot dead. His body with a bullet hole in the head was lying outside the church hall, a spokesman said. Security forces had not been in the area all night and no shooting incidents were reported, the spokesman said.

Jet Rider Wins

NEW YORK (UPI) — A state Supreme Court justice ruled yesterday that a passenger can collect damages from an airline for emotional distress suffered while aboard an international flight that was hijacked.

Justice Charles Rubin ruled against Trans World Airlines in a suit filed by Mirian Herman, 18, of Brooklyn.

Sue sued TWA to recover damages for emotional distress suffered when Palestinian commandoes hijacked a plane Sept. 6, 1970, ordered it to land on a desert airstrip near Amman, Jordan, and held the passengers captive for a week.

Black Hiring Asked

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Justice Department wants the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal to order the all-white Mississippi Highway Patrol to hire blacks on a one-for-one ratio "until the effects of prior discrimination have been corrected."

The Justice Department's request, filed with the appellate court yesterday, said the highway patrol employs no Negroes except for a few cooks and janitors and that no black in Mississippi history has ever been a state trooper.

Blasts Hit Airport

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Air traffic at Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport returned to normal today. Authorities said there were no casualties in a spectacular six-hour series of explosions which rocked an ammunition dump on the military side of the airfield Thursday.

Officials said they were unable to determine the cause of the blasts which touched off napalm, 250-pound bombs, rockets and small arms ammunition. No aircraft were damaged, authorities said.

Inventions Stressed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon hopes to encourage industry to find every-day uses for scientific inventions with a program of incentives including tax breaks, easy credit, patent concessions and relaxed enforcement of the antitrust laws.

In a special message to Congress yesterday, Nixon stressed the practical uses of science and technology over the "pure science" of basic research. He called for a new partnership of government, industry and universities to harness research and development to solutions of problems affecting the environment, health care, energy supply, transportation and urban decay.

Nixon said the government must encourage private industry to develop the commercial uses of technological advances. He called for expansion of a seven-month-old program which permits private business to obtain exclusive rights to produce and market products covered by government-owned patents.

A Tool Shed Out Of Litter

ORINDA, Calif. (UPI)—A group of ecology-minded junior high students have built a 6-by-10 foot tool shed out of litter.

The students collected waste paper, which was then shredded, pulped, mixed with stabilizing materials, formed into blocks and cured in the sun.

"I figure that I myself got rid of at least a hundred pounds of newspapers, catalogues, telephone books and old test papers," said John Guze, an eighth grader at Pine Grove Junior High.

Collegian Stabbed To Death—Witnesses

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A teen-ager stabbed one student to death and wounded another Thursday night in a subway station near Temple University when they refused to give him a cigarette or a dollar bill.

Police said 15 persons witnessed the stabbing, but would not aid the dying youth. His wounded friend was forced to run to the street to get a passarby to call police.

Wednesday, the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority announced it would install closed-circuit television in the station because of frequent muggings and vandalism.

Carey Dillinger, 19, a sophomore theater major at Temple was pronounced dead at Temple Hospital from a chest wound.

His roommate, William Snyder, 20, a junior English major, was treated at the hospital for a shoulder wound.

Life long friends, they came from Souderton, Pa., and lived in an apartment near the campus.

They planned to take the subway to Center City to attend a stage show.

Police said the two were entering the subway when one of three youths behind them asked for a cigarette and then for a dollar bill.

The students ignored the youths police said, but the one with a knife hurdled a turnstile and stabbed Dillinger. Then he stabbed Snyder.

The other youths grabbed their friend and the three fled.

Guilty Verdict In Final Trial Linking Manson

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The last of the series of nine murder cases involving Charles Manson and his disciples ended Tuesday in a guilty verdict.

Bruce Davis, 28, a follower of Manson, the convicted mastermind of the Sharon Tate killings, was convicted of two other slayings and a conspiracy count.

The guilty verdict brought to a conclusion the murder trials involving the so-called "Manson Family," although some of its members face lesser charges.

Davis was convicted of the 1969 killings of musician Gary Hinman and ranch hand Donald (Shorty) Shea. Both victims became involved with Manson around the time of the Tate-Labianca murders.

Vancouver Invasion Speculation

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Howard Hughes' surprise visit to Vancouver sparked speculation today the billionaire industrialist may be interested in a city firm producing short take-off and landing (STOL) aircraft.

Hughes set up headquarters in a $4,200-a-week suite at the Bayshore Inn Tuesday after a flight from Managua, Nicaragua. The security force surrounding the Hughes' party was said to be larger than that afforded Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau on his visits here.

The arrival of Hughes, accompanied by about 15 aides, put this West Coast city in a high state of excitement.

A local radio station asked listeners to state why they thought the billionaire was in Vancouver. The answers ranged from possible interest in the Vancouver Canucks hockey club to a romantic interest in Bobbi Gentry, who is performing in a local nightspot.

Most speculation however, centered on his possible interest in a STOL aircraft being produced by a suburban Vancouver firm, Dominion Aircraft Corp.

Company spokesmen declined comment, but it was known the company had booked two rooms at the Bayshore Inn on the floor immediately under the 24 suites rented by Hughes on the two top floors.

Nevada Puts Hughes On The Spot

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Before Howard Hughes can reorganize his desert gambling kingdom, he must first drop his mask of seclusion and meet with Nevada officials "face to face," the state Gaming Control Board ruled Thursday.

The Clifford Irving fraud shows one reason why, the board's chairman said. Nevada was relying on the same handwriting experts that told McGraw-Hill the Irving book was authentic.

Hughes has applied to the board for permission to rejuggle the power structure of his $100 million collection of casino-hotels in Las Vegas and Reno. The board oversees and regulates the legal gambling industry.

The Hughes empire takes in 17 per cent of Nevada gambling revenues.

"It will take a face to face meeting to resolve the doubts created in the public's mind by Howard Hughes' life style before the current operating setup can be changed," said board member Shannon Bybee, who recommended the board deny Hughes' application.

Nevada will no longer accept dealings with Hughes as it has in the past—through corporations, representatives, and letters certified as authentic by fingerprints and handwriting experts, said the board's chairman, Philip Hannifin.

"The recent court proceedings in the Irving fraud case cast doubt on whether the handwriting of Hughes could be accepted as proof of his desires," Hannifin said.

PHILIP HANNIFIN
Issues ultimatum

The forged handwriting that fooled analysts for McGraw-Hill into accepting as authentic the Irving book "should be clear warning to this state that we cannot depend on such evidence to assure ourselves of the desires of the stockholder," Hannifin said.

The same experts who were fooled by the "Hughes handwriting" given McGraw-Hill were employed by Nevada to authenticate Hughes' letters, Hannifin said.

"Nevada law requires every applicant or holder of a gaming license to fully disclose all aspects of his personal and business life. Mr. Hughes has avoided this disclosure despite our attempts to deal with him on a discreet and private basis," Hannifin said.

Gov. Mike O'Callaghan recalled Wednesday that Hughes aides said last year that a face-to-face meeting would be "too traumatic" for Hughes.

But the governor pointed out that Hughes reportedly met personally with Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza and the U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua in Managua before leaving the Central American republic for Vancouver.

That shows, O'Callaghan said, that Hughes "has reached the point where he can meet face to face with people in positions of authority and survive."

NIXON

results have been sometimes sound, sometimes bizzare —but certainly uneven."

Nixon proposed to spend $2.5 billion to improve poverty area schools under the proposed Equal Educational Opportunities Act. The funds would be redirected from other parts of the budget. Nixon stressed that it would not be new money.

Nixon drew both strong praise and harsh criticism for his proposals, which concentrated on a legislative approach to the extremely sensitive issue — both politically and socially —of busing.

He did not rule out the possibility of future support of a constitutional amendment, but told the people the process would take too long to gain approval and that "what we need now is not just speaking out against more busing but action to stop it."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., was among the first and most vigorous objectors to Nixon's proposals. After the Nixon speech, the Democratic presidential candidate accused Nixon of abandoning "moral and political leadership" of the nation.

A spokesman for the NAACP Clarence Mitchell today called the President's proposals "incredible" and served notice that "we'll be right in court when they (Congress) pass such a law," Mitchell added. "And I predict we'll win."

Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., who favors a constitutional amendment against busing, nevertheless praised Nixon's recommendations, saying today that "what we need is clarification of what the supreme Court really means" on the subject of busing.

Nixon drafted his busing plans after the Florida primary in which voters there voted by a 3-1 margin in favor of banning by constitutional amendment any busing to achieve racial balance in schools.

Mitchell insisted that Nixon "revised his opposition" to come down harder on the issue after Florida. The White House denied that.

The President said he was convinced that a majority of the people —black and white — oppose busing.

In describing his proposed busing moratorium Nixon said: "I propose that the Congress act to impose a temporary freeze on new busing orders by the federal courts —to establish a waiting period while the Congress considers alternative means of enforcing 14th Amendment rights. "I propose that this freeze be effective immediately on enactment, and that it remain in effect until July 1, 1973, or until passage of the appropriate legislation, whichever is sooner."

Theft Suspects' Hearings Slated

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for April 4 for Richard Warren Lacaze, 20, a Stinson Beach garbageman charged in connection with a series of burglaries.

Lacaze, whose mother owns Henry's Service, the firm which provides garbage pickup for Stinson Beach and Tamalpais Valley is accused of two counts of burglary as well as receiving stolen property and grand theft.

A fellow garbageman, Dennis Michael Murphy, 22, is also due for preliminary hearing April 4 on charges stemming from the theft of a motorcycle taken from a Tamalpais Valley resident.

Lomax In Hot Denial On Funds

The former executive director of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council denied today that he has been asked by the federal government to repay $1,700 in public money allegedly spent by him on personal matters.

Not only did the Independent-Journal err in that report yesterday on his and the agency's financial affairs, said Robert W. Lomax, but the situation is quite the reverse. The government owes him about $18.

In a memorandum to members of the local poverty agency board, Lomax said federal auditor Philip Megna denied telling the Independent-Journal a demand had been made for return of money spent by Lomax.

"After the article appeared in today's (yesterday's) newspaper, I telephoned Mr. Megna's office and was informed by Mr. Megna himsElf that the statements attributed to him are totally inaccurate and incorrect." Lomax wrote.

"Many of the items charged to me were either paid, should not have been charged to me, or have been repaid," he said.

A spokesman for the Office of Economic Opportunity in San Francisco told the I-J today that any further statement on the auditor's finding would be "premature." He said the local EOC will receive the audit report at the end of the month and then will have 30 days to respond to findings. Then it will become a public record.

when we see obvious waste, such as water running into the street from lawn irrigation," he said.

If a voluntary program fails, Stroeh said the district may have to establish a priority system of most essential water needs (sanitary and domestic use and fire protection) and begin limiting or prohibiting other less essential uses.

In the event of a serious shortage, district staff members have suggested certain uses be prohibited in this order: 1. Street flushing and cleaning from hydrants; 2. Residential car washing; 3. Lawn watering; 4. Watering of golf course fairways; 5. All other irrigation uses and 6. Use by commercial laundries and other major users.

At its meeting Wednesday, the water district board will consider obtaining some surplus water from the North Marin County Water District through an intertie approved by voters in a 1970 bond issue. Stroeh said the intertie, which would bring approximately 1.5 billion gallons a year to Marin would not be completed until summer of 1973 and could not alleviate a shortage this year. "But we hope it will help the situation by the end of next year," he said.

Stroeh said the district has not completed the intertie because it delayed work on the project until last November's election when voters turned down the proposed Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct which was to bring Russian River water to Marin.

district rules and encouraging antisocial attitudes among students.

One of Anderson's students, Bruce Paul Lohmann, a 17-year-old Sausalito youth, admitted to the three bombings and is reportedly at a private institution in Southern California.

Shapiro said special district counsel William O. Weissich, former Marin district attorney who suddenly entered the case the past month, and Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino questioned Anderson at length yesterday about a possible link between the teacher and Lohmann's activity.

Further, it was learned, the Marin County District Attorney's office conducted a fruitless criminal investigation of a possible Anderson-Lohmann conspiracy last summer.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said the probe took several weeks. "It was no fly-by-night investigation," he said, "but it didn't bear fruit in the sense that we didn't come up with enough evidence to make a criminal prosecution go."

Shapiro said the school district attorneys asked Anderson whether he put Lohmann up to the bombings, whether the bombs used in the blasts had been stored in Anderson's class-

in a stereo cabinet and whether the teacher had given the youth a key to the cabinet.

The bombings occurred April 28 in a boys' restroom at the high school, April 23 at the Mill Valley branch of the Bank of America and on March 23 at the bank's Sausalito branch.

The San Anselmo attorney also said Weissich and Godino asked whether Anderson, a former San Franciscan now living in West Marin, had told Lohmann that "the thing to do was to blow up the tractors on the hill," meaning the bulldozers grading Shelter Ridge in Mill Valley for a massive apartment development.

"He denied everything," Shapiro said.

Godino declined today to discuss the interrogation. "We feel this still is a personnel matter involving a district employee and we are reluctant to discuss it publicly."

Bales said the investigation by his office was done at the request of Godino's office, although Godino denied it today. He said he had only discussed a possible criminal ivestigation.

Beyond the bombing inquiry, Shapiro said, yesterday's questioning centered on school officials' objections to Anderson's "philosphy of education and his personal attitudes about political and social problems."

"Questions dealt with the fact that he had been accused by some parents of taking an activist position on ecology" and an instance when Anderson gave all students in an advanced class an "F" on midterm papers but "A" marks on finals.

"Kenneth Anderson is a controversial teacher," Shapiro said. "He did things like encourage an encounter group or sensitivity sessions and the school board responded violently against this, so he dropped it."

Anderson a former professional baseball player, was hired by the district in 1967 after teaching at Novato High School and in Pittsburg. He also was a freshman baseball and junior varsity basketball coach at Tam High.

He was suspended as a teacher by the district board last May, although he has continued t work as an assistant to the school principal.

Rec Center Suggested For Library

A member of the San Rafael Library Board suggested last night that the library building be converted into a community recreation center to replace the present recreation center in the former courthouse square annex.

James Mayer, addressing the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission meeting, also suggested a joint bond issue for the library conversion and for relocation of the library to recreation center facilities in the square, according to Andrew J. Snyder, director of parks and recreation.

The question of library relocation was raised last month by the library board because, the board believed, it "could set the tone for revitalizing downtown San Rafael."

Following discussion, the parks and recreation commission last night agreed to consider the proposal, Snyder said.

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission also:

NIKE — Heard Snyder say that a cost estimate of minimum improvements at the Nike missile site had been compiled which totaled $34,900.

WORKSHOP — Heard Snyder announce that Scott Tilden, parks supervisor, will attend a vandalism workshop in Fairfield next Thursday. The workshop will be sponsored by the California Park and Recreation Society, District One.

SALARY — Adjourned to next Thursday at 8 p.m. in city hall to review personnel salary surveys and reclassifications and the 1972-73 budget.

three months ago after the Indian-Pakistani war. She said "you have to build new homes, you have to build a new society" and said they had the leader to hdlp them, Rahman.

Rahman, who observed his 53rd birthday, did not mention the task of reconstruction in his speech. He expressed gratitude for India's role in Bangladesh's liberation but warned that divisive forces were still at work to crdate dissensions between Dacca and New Delhi.

The Sheikh asked for a pledge to frustrate what he said was the Pakistani-engineered conspiracy and was greeted by raised hands and shouts from the audience, all of whom were Bengali men except for about 5,000 women in a special section in the sprawling race grounds.

Observers said the security precautions probably were the strictest ever taken in Dacca. Police and Mujib's Awami League volunteers searched spectators for weapons as they entered the race course. Several dozen men were arrested for carrying concealed weapons, mostly knives. A couple who were said to be carrying pistols were beaten by police.

Indian security officials preceded Mrs. Gandhi to Dacca, setting up such airtight precautions that they canceled her scheduled laying of a wreath at the Martyrs monument in the city. Mrs. Gandhi flew from the airport to the presidential mansion in an Indian Air Force helicopter, by passing thousands of Bengalis who had gathered along the airport road to see her. The public was barred from the airport during her arrival from New Delhi.

All three are to be discussed by the board of supervisors on Tuesday.

The regional district offers other advantages, the proponents maintain, such as future expansion into Southern Sonoma County (with voter approval), a stable income which would not have to compete with other county needs, and an elected board which would devote its time to open space acquisition.

Also, the board could commit future boards to land purchase through long-term purchase agreements.

The Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club, in a letter supporting formation of a regional park district, says the open space lands to be purchased first should follow those recommended in the county's preliminary countywide plan.

Some of those include the North Ridge near Mill Valley, San Pedro Mountain, Big Rock Ridge, Mount Burdell and the Tiburon Peninsula ridgeline.

Fidel Castro several years ago used numerous occasions to accuse the Chinese of lying and of deceit in trade negotiations, particularly relating to Cuban shipments of sugar to China in exchange for Chinese rice.

Latin America's main interest in relations with China centers more on trade than on politics. Yet most Latin governments are fairly realistic about the issue, doubting that trade relations with Peking will be more than on a limited basis in the next year or so. But they expect it will pick up afterwards.

Mexico, for example, expects its new trade activities with China will amount to the shipment of $40 million worth of primary products, including cotton, over the next two years, but that the amount of trade will pick up after that.

Mexico began trading with the Chinese mainland back in 1963. And in 1965 the two nations founded a commission for economic development. Also in 1965 the Chinese held a machinery, art, and manufacturers exposition in Mexico City, while last year a Mexican trade mission took part in the Canton trade fair.

Easter Seal Unit To Hold Auction

New experiences ranging from lunch with a politician to ski and ceramics lessons or ownership of a pony will be auctioned by Easter Seal Society volunteers from noon to 4 p.m. tomorrow in Northgate Shopping Center, San Rafael.

Phyllis Widdershoven of the Marin chapter said funds raised from the auction will finance speech therapy, recreation, social programs and other services for disabled persons.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, both R-San Rafael, have donated luncheon appointments to the auction. Other services and items donated include a gourmet dinner for 12 served in the high bidder's home, sculptures, a sailing trip with picnic luncheon at Angel Island and dinner dates with Bay Area celebrities, according to Elizabeth McClintock, auction chairman.

It accused Carleson and his deputies of having "ignored or deliberately violated these precise legislative mandates in a crude and unlawful attempt to rewrite the act through administrative regulations."

Cited as examples of attempts to rewrite the act were regulations taking away college opportunity grants for children of welfare families; "forcing off" welfare elderly, blind and disabled recipients who acquired personal property worth more than $300; and "encouraging illicit relationships by imposing financial penalty on stepfathers."

The report recommended these actions be taken:

Enact legislation attaching a civil penalty to officials who "knowingly adopt regulations contrary to law or who knowingly refuse to implement laws passed by the legislature."

Direct the Joint Legislative Audit Committee to "determine the extent of illegal, wasteful or otherwise improper use of public funds" by the department.

Enact legislation requiring the department to notify in advance and consult with county welfare directors before emergency regulations are issued.

Direct the auditor general to create a special team to "monitor and oversee" the operations of the state welfare department.

Candidate Will Move Into District

One of three candidates in Marin Municipal Water District's Division 5 said today that he will move before the June 6 election to clear a legal cloud over his right to serve if elected.

Dr. Ronald T. Stafford, of 21 Wolfback Ridge Road, Sausalito, lives just outside the district, the county elections office discovered last week to Stafford's own surprise. His rented home is served through a contract with the district, but itself is outside the district, the elections office reported.

The county counsel's office ruled today that Stafford "would not be eligible to take office unless he had become a resident of the division at the time of the election."

Stafford gave a different legal interpretation of state codes, saying that he did not have to move unless he took office. But he told the Independent-Journal that he nevertheless will move into the division before the election to avoid legal challenges if elected.

Other candidates for the seat are Robert G. Anderson Jr. and Willard A. Hall, both of Sausalito. Anderson is a son of the outgoing incumbent, Robert G. Anderson, who is retiring after 21 years on the board.

The division includes Sausalito, Marin City, Tennessee and Tamalpais valleys, Tiburon and Belvedere.

Guilty Plea Averts Trial On Drug Count

Donald Dean Oliver, 37, of San Rafael, changed his plea to guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of possessing amphetamine when arrested during a drug raid on a San Rafael house last April.

At the time of the guilty plea, the district attorney's office agreed to dismiss five felony narcotic charges against Oliver, who has a long drug record.

Oliver was arrested when police went to a residence at 18-A Latham Street with a search warrant after an alleged sale of heroin to an informant by another man.

At the residence they arrested Oliver and Robert Bruce Reiner, 19. In subsequent court actions charges of selling and possessing heroin for sale against Oliver were dismissed for lack of evidence but he was still accused of having the speed found on his person.

He is to be sentenced by Judge Samuel W. Gardiner on April 4. Two physicians have been appointed to examine Oliver to determine if he is a drug addict.

Reiner is due to be retried next week in superior court on the heroin sale charge. In January a jury failed to agree on whether he was guity.

10 Months' Jail Term On Burglary

Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court yesterday placed Robert Louis Arnett II, 22, of San Rafael, on probation for three years and sent him to jail for 10 months for a burglary conviction.

It was reported in court by a probation officer that the California Rebahilitation Center probably wouldn't accept Arnett for further treatment for drug addition because he was a parole violator from that institution.

Judge Broderick, warned Arnett that further criminal offenses would probably mean state prison for him. The judge gave him credit on the jail sentence for the time spent in jail sentence since his arrest.

Arnett was convicted by a jury last month of the burglary of a residence on Woods Street in San Rafael on Nov. 24.

Another man, Thomas Eric Grayson, 21, also of San Rafael, arrested with Arnett, has pleaded guilty to a burglary charge and is to be sentenced Monday.

All Seven Tax Pleas Contested

The Marin County Assessor's office last month contested all seven tax appeals submitted by Greenbrae Marina residents who claim their homes are sinking.

The Independent-Journal erred Wednesday in reporting that only one appeal was contested, that of Carlton D. Dethlefsen of 230 Riviera Circle.

Dethlefsen's home was the only home for which the assessor's office attempted to increase its own assessment during the appeal hearings.

Misdemeanor Pot Charge

Only a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana has been filed in Marin Municipal Court against John C. Strange Jr., 25, of Rohnert Park, who was arrested Monday on suspicion of a felony pot charge.

He is to return to court Wednesday to enter a plea.

He was arrested after police went to a hilly area of San Rafael to investigate reports of motorcyclists. They found no bikers but said they saw Strange sitting on the hill rolling something in his hands. He had a plastic bag of suspected pot, police said.

Developers Rap Cotati On Parking

The Cotati City Council last night introduced its new zoning ordinance despite complaints from developers about parking requirements.

City Clerk Carol Bonfigli said several developers complained about the requirement of two parking spaces for each unit in apartments. Developer Harold Heers said he already has plans drawn up for an apartment complex with 1.5 spaces per unit.

The council said it felt the two-space provision was justified and told Heers he would have to apply for a variance or change his plans.

In other business, the council appointed Archie Stewart, 200 Valparaiso Avenue, to fill a vacancy on the planning commission. Stewart owns Arch's Glass Shop.

City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen reported that work on revamping the old water well may not begin until June 30 and that he hoped the Sonoma County Water Agency will provide water if needed in the interim.

Cycle Injuries

Tony Marjno, 18, of 153 Yolo Street, Corte Madera, was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for bruises suffered during a motorcycle accident in Corte Madera. No other details were available from Corte Madera Police.

Year-Round Plan Said Best For Bigger Schools

The Old Adobe School District board, Petaluma, heard last night that changing the school calendar to the 45-15 Plan would work best in the larger, crowded schools in the district.

School staff members are studying the feasibility of changing the school calendar to the year-round plan to make more efficient use of school buildings. Under the plan, students would be in class for 45 days, or nine weeks, followed by 15 school days of vacation.

Representatives of crowded La Tercera and Miwok Valley schools said they believed the curriculum could be changed for the new plan and benefit students. They said that if the schedule were staggered with students divided into four groups with only three in attendance at any one time, attendance at any one time could be reduced 25 per cent.

Teachers from Bernard Eldredge and Old Adobe schools said the smaller size of their buildings and enrollments would not adjust as well to the staggered plan and recommended that either the traditional calendar be retained or the 45-15 Plan be adopted without staggering.

Norman Ross, La Tercera principal, told the board that parents would be involved in the study and that many information programs would be held at each school to allow parents to participate.

Ross said surveys will be distributed to all parents to gather opinions. A final recommendation on whether to change the calendar will be made to the board on April 20.

The board accepted a gift of $276 from sixth grade students at La Tercera School to buy trees and shrubs. The funds were raised through the sale of juice bars.

Greenbrae Teacher Has Many Projects For Her Retirement

By LARRY MOWELL

Elna Farr, teacher to a generation of Greenbrae children, will shift her unorthodox methods to things "closer to the bone" when school lets out in June.

Mrs. Farr has taught kindergarten children at Greenbrae School since it opened in 1951, but, at an age when most people are thinking only of a secure retirement, she is planning a foot-loose existence.

The 62-year-old teacher said she will leave for France after she sells her home in Kentfield. Later she hopes to return to the United States to work as a VISTA volunteer or write a book on one of her favorite topics: how the American Indian has affected the white man.

She may even finish a journal she is writing on her teaching years.

"I just simply wanted to go into something else. I don't suppose I am going to retire. It is lovely I am not responsible for anyone anymore," she said after a busy day with her 27 young charges earlier this week.

A divorcee, she has two grown daughters, Lisa Shanbron of Fairfax and Victoria Brown of Seattle, Wash.

Born on an Idaho farm, she studied at the University of Utah, then taught high school in Idaho for three years before her marriage in 1936.

She moved to San Francisco that year and settled down to raise a family.

But she became interested in teaching children again while organizing children's art exhibits for the DeYoung Museum in San Francisco.

"I taught small children because they are the best artists. They are generally a joy to be with. They are open and free and without vested interests," she said.

Her attitudes about the abilities of her 5-year-olds counters that commonly held by educators.

The Sesame Street television program hailed by some for its educational value wins no praise from Mrs. Farr, who called it teaching children by rote.

"They have very good brains. I want them to learn to think," she said.

She said her main effort has been to teach her children to develop a passion for something and then define themselves as individuals.

"I don't think you can educate children unless they have a passion for something. School has tended to be sort of pleasant and kind, but not enough guts," she charged.

PASSIONS — Elna Farr, nearing retirement after 21 years at Greenbrae School, explains the peculiar talents of the hummingbird. She talks of her great passions — birds, Indians and kindergartners — nonstop and thoughtfully.

Her class isn't all pleasant and kind. She teaches her pint-sized pupils about death and its relation to the life cycle of things. They also learn sad songs.

But on the other hand, they talk about people who have done good things so the youngsters don't become disenchanted with the human race, she said.

They also discuss contemporary news and her passion, Indians. As a girl she had close contact with Shoshone who lived on a nearby reservation. Today she looks much like an Indian with her jet black hair tied loosely in back and flowing down her neck.

She said Indians are not a savage influence, but, on the contrary seem to civilize children. "You could say the Pope or the President of the United States said it and they won't pay any attention, but yoy can say Standing Bear (an Indian chief) said it and they'll listen," she said.

Bows and arrows are an unexpected fixture in her class room of miniature chairs, children's books, toys and crayons.

"I let them shoot bows and arrows, which, of course, is phallic and does them no end of good," she maintained. "Because I do have bows and arrows I never have any gunplay."

Another standout in her class is a wall she painted with water and land birds which her students are adept at naming. They know the habits of about 150 birds, she said.

"They always know more than anybody in their families. You don't know what it does to their status in the family to become experts at 5," she said.

Contrary to popular opinion that the mind and attention span of 5-year-olds is limited, she argues children can understand "anything I can explain to them."

She said her teaching method hasn't changed much in 21 years; her ideas about children have been confirmed.

"Children do need a gutsy program that is a little bit closer to life," she said.

She said she still considers providing that kind of lesson in life important, but added, "I think I would like to work at something a little closer to the bone."

Keep Duplicates

STORRS, Conn. (UPI)—Keep a duplicate record of important family papers and numbers (insurance policies, social security, driver's license) in a book stored away from the home front—say in a bank or at your office. In event an emergency destroys the originals, you'll be less at sea, says Dr. Elsie Fetterman, Extension Family Economist at the University of Connecticut.

Grow Your Primroses On Classics

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 13-year-old girl says you shouldn't play rock music to a primrose.

Classical music, jazz, and country and western are acceptable.

Sue Jean Condon's deductions came from an experiment with primroses that she did as a science project, and entered in the Bay Area Science Fair.

The San Mateo eighth grader uaid that between Jan. 25 and Feb. 26, she played rock music three hours daily to a primrose. Other primroses were given doses of various types of music and one plant remained in silence as the "control."

The primrose where classical music was played grew best, even better than the control plant, she reported. With jazz and country and western, the plant growth was slightly hampered.

Rock music, however, stunted the primrose's height and the plant had faded blooms.

Hearings Set Next Month On New Span

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Bay Conservation and Development Commission plans to hold hearings in April on a proposed new bridge over San Francisco Bay on which the voters will be asked to express their views in the June election.

The BCDC, in a meeting Thursday, decided to hold hearings beginning April 6 in order to clarify the position it should take on the controversial span.

Earlier the commission granted a permit for the bridge, but construction was halted by the state legislature. The June ballot will ask voters in the six Bay Area counties whether the new bridge should be banned until the legislature again gives specific approval for its construction.

The commission approved a statement drawn up by its staff which said the group has never "approved" the Southern Crossing in the sense of deciding whether it was necessary or desirable and that it should therefore be built.

But a part of the staff report which said the commission joined with other opponents of the span "in recommending that the crossing not be built at this time" was deleted.

Burn Victim Satisfactory

Paul Deutsch, 26, of 1529 Colewood Drive, Petaluma, was reported in satisfactory condition at Kaiser Hospital, San Francisco, with second degree burns suffered in a fire at 4 a.m. today.

Deutsch suffered burns of the hands, arms and thighs. Firemen from the Division of Forestry said he was at the home of Edward C. Givlin, 215 Gossage Way, and was using gasoline to clean engine parts when the fire occurred.

Damage to the metal garage was minor.

Festival Of Music, Dance Set At College

An international festival of music and dance will be presented March 24 and 25 at 8:30 p.m. in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College.

A song, dance and drum troupe of 30 performers will be led by Tunji Vidal, a native of Abe-Okuta, Nigeria. Vidal is a new member of the Sonoma State music faculty.

The performance will represent various cultures of west and South Africa. Reservations may be made by calling the college office of instructional services and continuing education.

Treated

Mabel Howard, 20, of 253 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for bruises and a back strain suffered in an auto accident in San Francisco according to hospital officials. No details of the accident were available from San Francisco police.

Copter Plunges Into Viet River; 11 Killed

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. army helicopter flying American soldiers into action exploded in flight today and plunged in flames into the Dong Nai River, apparently killing all 11 men aboard. It was one of four American aircraft reported downed in Vietnam and Laos.

U.S. and South Vietnamese divers searched through the day in the river 21 miles from Saigon and recovered eight bodies. The remaining three were listed as missing and presumed dead.

U.S. officers said the chopper was lifting a "Blue Team"—a quick reaction ground force—into a troubled area to help embattled troops at the time of the crash. The men were from the 3rd Brigade of the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

The U.S. Command said another UH1 helicopter was hit by small arms fire from the ground 100 miles east of Saigon today, wounding two Americans. It said an Air Force F105 crashed in Laos Sunday and that one crewman was hurt and one escaped injury. An OV10 observation plane crashed in Laos on Tuesday and the pilot was reported missing.

In the stepped-up ground war South Vietnamese troops fought their biggest single battle in nearly four months Thursday 18 miles southwest of the former imperial capital of Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon. An estimated 90 men on both sides were killed or wounded.

ABAG Is Working On Guidelines For Housing

BERKELEY (UPI)—The Association of Bay Area Governments executive committee has undertaken development of guidelines for federal housing programs in the Bay Area.

The committee voted to establish a task force to develop the proposed guidelines to be presented to the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The guidelines will make recommendations on proceduref for allocation of federal housing funds in the area.

"There is clearly a great need for speed in setting this up," Donald Dillon, of Fremont, told the executive committee.

The regional government organization, under the program decided on by the executive committee, would become a key group through which cities in the area would apply for and be granted federal housing funds.

Whale Problem Finally Solved

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A Navy demolition team finally succeeded Thursday in destroying a dead whale that had been a problem for a week.

Navy frogmen used dynamite to blow up the 40-foot carcass moored near the Farallon Islands by the Coast Guard last week.

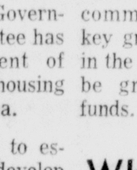

The gray whale first appeared in San Francisco Bay and was towed to sea by the Coast Guard. However, it drifted into Stinson Beach and the Coast Guard again took the mammal in tow after residents complained of the aroma.

A Navy explosives team tried to destroy the 15-ton carcass earlier this week but failed when the charges kept slipping off the whale.

Security Funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House has passed and sent to the Senate a measure that would create a $3 million security system in which closed circuit TV cameras would keep watch on the hallways in the U.S. Capitol and its surrounding office buildings.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

VD Education Bill To Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly has swiftly approved a venereal disease education bill supported by Gov. Ronald Reagan along with a companion measure to provide $238,000 in state assistance for the courses.

The principal bill, by Assemblywoman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, was sent to the Senate Thursday on a 58-3 vote following a brief debate. The appropriation measure, by Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, was approved minutes later on a 58-2 vote.

Mrs. Fong had declared that there is a VD epidemic in California, particularly among young persons.

She stirred up a heated controversy last year with a similar bill vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, who said he opposed the measure because it did not contain a provision that parents be notified in advance of a VD course so that they could withdraw their children.

This year, Mrs. Fong altered her bill to provide that parents be notified 15 days in advance of the beginning of a VD course. But the measure would not require written approval or consent for a child to take part in the courses.

The legislation would permit local school boards to offer VD education and to determine at what level they should be taught.

The bill also assures that parents can inspect materials to be used in the courses.

After Mrs. Fong secured Reagan's support for the measure, she had little legislative opposition.

Voting against the bill Thursday were Assemblymen Eugene A. Chappie, R-Cool; John L.E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, and Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate. Collier and Wakefield also voted against Barnes' measure.

SCARLET 'D'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — If Sen. Arlin Gregorio has his way, convicted drunken drivers will suffer the same consequences as Hester Prynne, the condemned adulteress in Nathaniel Hawthorne's book "Scarlet Letter."

Under a bill introduced Thursday by the San Mateo Democrat, a person convicted of drunken driving would be required to display a big "D" on any vehicle he drove for the next six months.

In Hawthorne's book about New England during the puritan era, Hester Prynne was ordered to wear a scarlet embroidered letter "A" on her dress.

GUARD BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Bills designed to improve the performance of prison guards were introduced Thursday in both houses of the legislature.

Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, submitted a $16 miglion bill designed to upgrade standards for guards. It also would require the Department of Corrections to define the duties of correctional officers and establish expectations and performance levels.

LEGAL AGE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly has passed a bill amending the new "age of majority" act which makes persons legal adults at 18 instead of 21.

The bill, by Assemblyman Paul Priola, R-Pacific Palisades, was sent to the Senate Thursday on a 61-0 vote.

STERILIZATION

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Bill aimed at doing away with nonmedical tests some hospitals require of sterilization applicants was introduced Thursday by Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills.

The proposal would prohibit hospitals from imposing any nonmedical qualifications for sterilization surgery not imposed on persons seeking other types of operations.

ANTIBUSING

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A measure urging Congress to adopt a proposed antibusing amendment to the U.S. Constitution has been introduced by Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate.

HEALTH PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A comprehensive health insurance plan designed to make medical care "available at a reasonable cost to everyone" has been introduced by Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco.

Burton said Thursday the plan would be financed through an employer payroll tax of 1.5 to 2.5 per cent with a special health insurance income tax payable along with regular state income tax.

ABORTIONS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A three-bill package to reduce "fly-by-night abortion counseling groups" was introduced Thursday by Assemblyman Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach.

Burke said many of the so-called counseling services "are nothing more than abortion referral organizations who steer those inquiring about family planning to doctors who specialize in abortions.

ANTINOISE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sen. Anthony C. Bielsenson, D-Los Angeles, introduced a four-bill package Thursday designed to reduce noise pollution.

The measures would:

Create a state office of noise control to regulate noise pollution.

Set noise standards for construction equipment, office machinery and home appliances.

Establish noise insulation standards for new residential construction.

Require tougher airport noise restrictions.

HUSSEIN'S GRAND DESIGN

This map pinpoints King Hussein's plan for a semiautonomous Palestinian state which has exploded upon the Arab world like a bombshell. Yesterday, Mrs. Golda Meir of Israel flatly rejected the plan. Today, a close confidant of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said the plan is a "minefield from beginning to end" and a plot of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. (UPI Telephoto map)

Only Two Charges Filed In Ross Town Hall Fray

Only two felony charges were filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against a man arrested on suspicion of violating eight Penal Code sections during a wild battle with a Ross policeman early yesterday morning.

James Michael Bennewitz, 24, who gave a San Francisco address when booked into jail but who carried a card indicating he is a New York probation officer, was charged with burglary while armed and a felony battery on a police officer.

He is to return to court today to enter pleas and for a decision by Judge Peter Allen Smith as to whether his bail should be reduced from the present $20,000.

Bennewitz, long-haired and bearded, looked confusedly at the paper handed him in court yesterday. It listed only the two felony charges.

"But there were all those charges," he said. "I don't understand." Judge Smith told him to have a lawyer explain it to him.

Bennewitz was arrested after Ross Patrolman Michael Schladweiler, 26, found him in the Ross Town Hall about 2 a.m. The officer spotted a pair of boots in the council chambers, which he said turned out to be "occupied."

After getting one handcuff on Bennewitz, the officer said Bennewitz spun around and slammed the handcuffs into Schladweiler's face. A baotle ensued in which the officer sprayed Mace into Bennewitz's face but the suspect managed to get the officer's gun and flee.

He was later arrested after a chase by officers from various jurisdictions when they stopped his car in Corte Madera.

Elmer C. Scott, Ross director of public works, has raised the possibility that the captured man may have had an accomplice.

Scott reported that no trace had been found of more than $500 in checks made out for Ross permits, and $85.36 in cash taken from his office. Scott and police searched the getaway car and its route along Corte MaderaN9Creek.

Scott added that the revolver Bennewitz grabbed from Officer Michael Schladweiler during the struggle in the building, apparently discharged when Bennewitz fell into the creek. First reports of the episode had indicated the fleeing man shot at the officer.

Santa Venetia Flood Control Budget Up

The Santa Venetia Flood Control Zone advisory board last night approved an $85,000 budget proposal for 1972-73. The budget goes next to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for adoption.

County Flood Control Engineer Charles E. Murphy said the proposal compared with a $54,000 budget this year.

However, the zone will have spent only about $10,000 by the end of this fiscal year, Murphy said, and the excess funds will be carried to next year's budget.

Major items in next year's budget are $10,000 for continuation of levee reconstruction and $45,000 for design and construction of a drainage pipe along La Pasada from North San Pedro Road to Gallinas Creek.

Murphy said the board of supervisors will be asked to budget an additional $45,000 from county road funds for the drainage pipe, which, he said, will partially relieve flooding on several Santa Venetia streets, including North San Pedro Road. It will drain water from the hillside to the creek without overloading Santa Venetia's existing drainage system.

The budget will require no tax rate increase, nor could it, Murphy said, as the zone is already taxing its maximum allowable $1.02 per $100 assessed valuation.

Murphy said the board last night also directed him to ask the board of supervisors to enlarge the flood control board from five members to seven. Directors decided to seek community suggestions for names for the board to recommend to the supervisors for appointment to the flood control board to fill a vacancy created by the resignation last October of Ronald W. Shafer.

Innocent Pleas To Stolen Property Count

Two Marin men, suspected of receiving stolen goods taken by the carload in San Francisco, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to felony counts of concealing stolen property.

A jury trial for John Ackbarri, 33, of Novato, and Rochelle Louis Fisher, 21, of Santa Venetia, was set for the week of May 1.

San Francisco and Novato police said they went to Ackbarri's home last October and found furniture stolen in San Francisco between April and September.

Fisher was arrested later.

Police believe the men had furniture and equipment stolen from a railroad car last April as well as property including organs taken in two later $20,000 burglaries.

Two Jailed In Antiques Theft Case

Belvedere and Oakland police arrested two men in Oakland last night and recovered much of a collection of ancient armor and weaponry taken from the home of a Belvedere man last week.

Booked into Marin County Jail were Edward R. Wade, 33, and James A. Armstrong, 33, both of Oakland. Both were arrested on suspicion of burglary and possession of stolen property.

Value of the entire collection, taken from the home of Louis C. Lenzen, of 339 San Rafael Avenue last Thursday, was more than $2,400. Police could not estimate the value of the items recovered.

Police said Armstrong and Wade allegedly sold some of the weapons to an Oakland antique dealer who later saw an information flyer put out by Lenzen and recognized pictures of some of the items he bought. He called Oakland police, said Belvedere Police Chief John Jaeger, and was able to supply enough information to locate the two.

Oakland Police, Jaeger, and Belvedere Police Sgt. Duffy Midyett made the arrests.

Seminar At Hub School

Ways to involve Marin County teen-agers in environmental action will be explored at a day-long public seminar tomorrow, sponsored by the School of Arts and Sciences in San Anselmo.

Five panels featuring federal, regional nd county officials, writers, educators and others will be held between 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the school, at Scott Hall, 2 Kensington Road.

Among the 24 panel members will be Paul Brand, Bay Area Air Pollution Control District information director; Bill Taylor, environmental education specialist for the National Park Service; Majorie Macris and Ruth Corwin of the Marin County Planning Department; Frank Mlller, Tamalpais High School District board president, and Marty Kent Jones, conservationist and author of a book on the Tamalpais Creek controversy.

Operator Work Just Too Boring

By KAREN GJERDE
Redwood Student News Bureau

Colleen Maloney, a student at Redwood High School in Larkspur, has disdained the operator's switchboard and the typist's desk while assigned through the school's career guidance center to the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

She's out in the field, where the action is.

Several weeks ago Colleen was sent to the phone company office in San Rafael as part of Redwood's new clerical exploratory program.

"I sat through two hours of orientation and I decided it wasn't my bag," she said.

So the senior student changed from the clerical program to one that includes installation of phones, working on lines, and running the many machines which make the communication system work.

Colleen said she had no difficulty in changing programs. The fact that she is the only girl in the program does not seem to upset the phone company, either. And it doesn't bother Colleen — such a thing never has really, even when she was the only girl in her shop class at Redwood.

However, some phone officials find it difficult to understand that Colleen shows no interest in switchboard work.

Her group, consisting of four other boys, is spending two weeks at the company's plant service center. They have learned how to set a phone number and how to test a phone, by means of computer, to see if it is working properly.

They also have been instructed how to install a phone and how to operate a machine which sends messages from one office to another by means of impressions on a tape. Soon, they will learn about communications lines, but will not be allowed to climb the poles because of insurance risks.

A telephone, Colleen noted during an interview, is something that is always there — we take it for granted. She explained that she wanted to find out exactly how a phone works and why it works.

And, she added, she was surprised to find that so many different machines and computers are involved. For example, there are two machines that do nothing but produce dial tones when you pick up the receiver.

Colleen had questions, and she is pursuing the answers. She doesn't necessarily intend to become a phone installer or lineman, but explained she is simply interested in the work.

And women's liberation is not Colleen's bag, either. "I'm into the technical program because I'm interested, not to prove a point," she said.

The Sausalito Arts Association will hold a spring art festival on Memorial Day weekend, according to Shelagh Considine, Sausalito Art Center director.

The event will be held May 27, 28 and 29 at a site to be chosen.

The association at its meeting Wednesday appointed Emily Ross and Robert Clarke as festival codirectors, she said.

Marathon Orr Hearing Nears End; Defense Rests Its Case

By C. P. McCARTHY

As the end appeared in sight, attorneys for both sides in a hearing into the firing of Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr attempted to make a few final points last night at the 29th session of the Fairfax Board of Review hearing.

Orr's attorney, Leonard Shaw, rested his case with testimony by a San Francisco attorney, submission of his own written testimony and a legal memorandum on one aspect of the case.

Fairfax City Atty. Wallace S. Myers called the first of what he said would be five rebuttal witnesses.

Both attorneys agreed that Orr's appeal of his dismissal may be submitted to the board of review for decision next Friday.

Orr, police chief in Fairfax for nine years, was fired by City Administrator Robert E. Crowe last Sept. 30. After the dismissal was upheld by a 3-2 vote of the Fairfax City Council, Orr appealed to the city's board of review which began its hearing of the case four months ago yesterday.

The attorney, Ellen Buchanan, testified as a defense witness in connection with a charge that Orr failed to maintain adequate protection of evidence and files.

Specifically, Orr is accused of careless handling of evidence related to the murder last year of Barbara Shipe.

(Mrs. Shipe, 47, was shot at her Scenic Avenue home on July 13. Her estranged husband, Edwin, 49, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a state prison term.)

Mrs. Buchanan, who represented Mrs. Shipe's estate, laughed at the first mention by Shaw of an "error," and said she mistakenly picked up a police department envelope related to the Shipe murder when she picked up two envelopes containing personal effects of Mrs. Shipe.

The three envelopes were together on a desk at the police department, she said. She noticed the error the next day, a Friday, and called Orr, she said, and a Fairfax policeman picked up the envelope Monday at her San Francisco office.

Mrs. Buchanan praised the Fairfax police department, and in particular police clerk-matron Marsha S. Kittelman.

(Among charges against Orr are that he illegally made Mrs. Kittelman a policewoman, showed favoritism to her and engaged in improper social relations with her.)

"The whole police department was extremely capable considering it was a small town. They handled the case beautifully," Mrs. Buchanan said.

Mrs. Kittelman, the attorney said, was "extremely pleasant, most polite and most efficient." The clerk-matron on her own time and own initiative watered the plants at Mrs. Shipe's residence following the murder, Mrs. Buchanan said.

Under questioning by Myers, Mrs. Buchanan said that Mrs. Kittelman had told her she was a policewoman.

An objection by Shaw prevented her from replying to Myers's suggestion, "You know, of course, Ed Shipe was caught by the Petaluma police department."

Myers, however pressed, asked where Shipe was arrested. "In Petaluma," Mrs. Buchanan answered.

"By Chief Orr," Shaw added, sparking an objection by Myers to Shaw "testifying."

Shaw last night submitted a five-page legal memorandum in connection with Mrs. Kittelman's status as a policewoman. Orr has already conceded in previous testimony that his making her a police officer may have violated "the letter of our civil service code."

Shaw, however, argued that supporting legality of the action were: an "emergency situation" creating a need for a female undercover narcotics agent; lack of an employment list from which such an agent could have been appointed, and city council approval of her appointment.

Shaw also submitted a three-page document, signed "under penalty of perjury," stating his recollection of events immediately prior to the actual firing of Orr.

Shaw contends he and Orr were still discussing a demand by the city that Orr take a lie detector test or be fired when he was fired.

Myers said he would submit tonight a written statement of Crowe's recollection of the same events and that Crowe's version would differ "slightly" from Shaw's.

Shaw said the difference is that Crowe maintains Shaw told him the chief would not take the lie detector test.

In questioning his first rebuttal witness — Fairfax Police Officer Michael Morarity — Myers covered much the same ground he did last week in questioning Officer Dee Carver, a defense witness.

Morarity said last night that he had written three citations in connection with trucks owned by Carver and that he had discussed the violations with Orr, but Orr had done nothing about it.

At Shaw's request, board of review chairman Freeman Blake ruled inadmissable a tape recording Morarity made without Carver's knowledge of a conversation between the two officers.

Blake said his ruling would be temporary to allow Myers to research the law to see if the tape could be admitted.

Morarity is to return to the witness stand at 7:30 p.m. today for questioning by Shaw.

Myers said he would also be calling as rebuttal witnesses Fairfax Police Sgt. Paul Simpson, Fairfax City councilmen Robert R. Souza and Lee Nelder and "maybe one more."

The board will also meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday. The two attorneys said the case may be submitted next Friday if the board meets again next Thursday and Friday.

Former 49er Planning A Major Shopping Center In Greenbrae

Connolly Development Inc., of Oakland, headed by former San Francisco 49er Ted Connolly, is planning a major shopping center in Greenbrae on Niels J. Schulz Jr. property next to Bon Air Shopping Center.

This is in direct competition with another regional shopping center planned by Southern California developer Ernest W. Hahn in Corte Madera on the east side of Highway 101 from Tamalpais Drive to Larkspur Trailer Park.

Connolly is reported negotiating with several major department stores to locate at his proposed shopping center. He plans to buy the 75-acre parcel from Highway 101 to Bon Air Shopping Center and build a multi-level retail store mall in addition to the major department store buildings.

THREE NEW FIRMS with exotic style have opened up in San Rafael's West End, at 1560 Fourth Street, across the street from Bordenave's San Rafael Bakery.

The Oriental Rug Co. of San Rafael is operated by Michael Edwards of Berkeley, who put in three years of serious study in the history of Oriental rugs and weaving.

He picks up rare and antique rugs from travels around the country and also imports directly from Iran and Afghanistan. He carries unusual items like saddle bags and camel trappings.

Next door is a firm called Eden, whose proprietress is Eve. Eden, a photography and furniture shop, is operated by Eve Crane of San Rafael. Her associate is Emmon Clarke, Mill Valley photographer.

Eden provides complete photo to service and handles exotic furniture such as a couch hewn out of log or a coffee table made from a huge slice of redwood root.

Behind these two stores are the workshops of a firm called Elf Designs, owned by Pat Kluto of Sausalito. Kluto has redeisgned the exterior of the building, using attractive redwood in place of concrete and stucco. Elf Designs turns out restaurant furniture and dining room sets.

"MAKING LOVE," a new body lotion for women, has been developed by Morton W. Scott, president of Kale Laboratories of San Rafael.

The lotion is now being distributed in beauty shops throughout the West Coast. "We hope to have them soon in department stores nationwide," said Scott.

MARIN MEDICAL Society and Woman's Auxiliary will sponsor an open house this coming Sunday at the society's new headquarters building at Northgate Industrial Park, 4460 Redwood Highway. Open house is from 3 to 6 p.m.

JANET SHOUNDER of Corte Madera and Sylvia Parks of Terra Linda have been named escrow officers at California Land Title Co., San Rafael.

Mrs. Shounder has had five years experience with title companies and two years with a real estate firm. Mrs. Parks worked for title companies for seven years, the last three with California Land Title.

THE SOCIAL SECURITY Gallery, 549 Northgate Drive, Terra Linda, is currently presenting paintings by Oakland artist Ted Greer.

INVESTING

Good Buy For Your Nephew

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Would you please recommend a stock which would make a suitable investment for my 10-year old nephew's education? — I.P.

A. NYSE-listed Skil Corp., the second largest producer of portable power tools, would be an excellent selection for a young boy. The fastest growing segment of Skil's business is the consumer market, which is benefitting from the firmly established do-it-yourself trend of today's homeowners. Network TV advertising is used by this aggressive merchandiser to help tap the consumer market.

By the end of 1969, Skil had a 15-year record of rising sales. But the recession in 1970, coupled with the prolonged midwestern truck strike, put the lid on growth and reduced earnings to five cents a share. Recovery in 1971 was impressive; sales reached an all-time high of $74 million up from $61.6 million in 1970, while earnings were $1.17 a share. Business thus far in 1972 has been strong and sales could reach $80 million for the full year. Shares, trading at 20x projected 1972 earnings, are a promising buy for growth.

Q. How do I find out if high yield AA-rated hospital bonds are safe? — G.A.

A. If bonds are rated AA by a reputable national rating service, such as Moody's or Standard & Poor's, this is certainly a very favorable indication of their security.

In addition to reading the descriptive circular sent out by the underwriter, it would be very wise to send for and read the offering prospectus. Even though you may not be familiar with a balance sheet, there should be sufficient explanatory literature included in the prospectus so that you will be able to satisfy yourself on the solvency of the institution.

One drawback in this particular investment area is the difficulty sometimes encountered when people wish to sell prior to maturity date. Although the offering underwriters may maintain markets in these bonds, buyers are not always available when needed. Thus, unless you have enough cash or liquid investments to meet emergencies, this attractive yield had better be by-passed.

Market Is Slightly Higher At Opening

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market was slightly higher after two hours of trading on the New York Exchange today in what at least one analyst said was an apathetic session.

The market was not without some encouraging news. Two major banks —First National City and Irving Trust — boosted their prime rates a quarter point apiece to 4 3-4 per cent, effective Monday.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed in fairly quiet trading. Of 1,001 issues traded, there were 345 declines, 340 advances. Volume barely topped 1.7 million shares. Most active issue included Nytronics, down 1 1-4 to 2 1-4 on 74,600 shares.

A feature on the New York Stock Exchange was Eastman Kodak, which soared 2 1-2 to 111 1-4. The company on Thursday introduced five new instamatic cameras about the size of cigaret packages in what it described as the age of "pocket photography."

Elsewhere in the market General Motors led its group higher with a point-size gain. Chrysler added 3-8 Steels eased.

The remainder of the chemical group joined Eastman Kodak in moving up. Dupont added 3-4, Allied Chemical 5-8.

Oils moved lower, led by Superior with a 2-point drop. Other losers included California Standard, Getty, Occidental Petroleum, Pennzoil and Kerr McGee.

Airlines and aircrafts turned mixed. In the electronics, Magnavox dropped 1 3-4, Control Data 1. Softness of the later issue has been attributed to the impending departure from the corporation of a key executive.

Two Banks Planning New Status

Both the Bank of California and the Security Pacific National Bank will form holding companies in hopes of expanding into areas outside the banking field.

Shareholders of Security Pacific, meeting Tuesday in Los Angeles, approved formation of Security Pacific Corp., whose principal subsidiary will be Security Pacific National Bank.

Shareholders of Bank of California, also meeting Tuesday in San Francisco, approved the formation of a holding company to be called BanCal Tri-State Corp.

Spokesmen for the banks explained that a holding company structure allows greater flexibility in taking advantage of investment opportunities.

Year's Earnings Are Reported

CHICAGO (BW) — Marcor Inc., parent company of Montgomery Ward and Container Corp. of America, has reported preliminary earnings for the fiscal year Feb. 1, 1971 through Jan. 31, 1972, were $57,512,000, down 3.6 per cent from $59,637,000 a year ago.

Sales increased 6.9 per cent to a record $2,998,577,000 from 1970 sales of $2,804,856,000.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Traveling Expenses Connected With Your Job Can Be Deducted

Traveling expenses in connection with your employment can be deducted from your income in arriving at your adjusted gross income. This means that you can also use the standrd deduction or itemize your deductions, whichever is better for you.

Out-of-Town Expenses - The law provides special deductions for the expenses of travel while away from home in connection with your employer's business. Traveling "away from home" means going away from the city or town where you normally work and remaining away at least overnight. "Travel expenses" means the cost of transportation, meals and lodging, and includes porters' tips, hire of public stenographers, baggage charges and similar expenses necessary to travel.

Other Transportation Expenses - Even though you do not travel away from home, you may deduct transportation expenses paid in connection with the performance of services for your employer. Transportation expenses include payments for actual travel or, if you use your own car, the business portion of the cost of operation, including fuel, repairs and depreciation.

Expenses of Outside Salesmen - The law allows "Outside Salesmen" to deduct all their ordinary and necessary business expenses. This applies only to full time salesmen who are engaged in soliciting business for their employers away from their employer's place of business. The term does not include one whose principal activities consist of services and delivery such as a milk-driver salesman.

Any reimbursement of these expenses must be included in your income.

An employee who gets a fixed per diem for travel and entertainment and gift expenses isn't required to account in detail for the outlays unless the per diem exceeds the higher of $25 or 125 per cent of the per diem the government allows its employees.

Recently the government rate was changed raising the per diem allowance to $25 for United States travel; 125 per cent of $25 is $31.25, therefore the rate has been increased to $31.25 per day.

If your employer reimburses you for the use of your car in any amount up to 15 cents per mile, you will be considered to have accounted for the expense.

If your automobile expense reimbursement is less than 12 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles and 9 cents per mile thereafter, you will want to include the reimbursement in your income and take a deduction at these standard rates. The standard rate for use of your automobile is 12 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles and 9 cents a mile thereafter.

Be sure to attach a statement to your return explaining in detail the expenses you deduct. IRS provides Form 2106 for this purpose.

Marin Dining And Wining

The Caprice In Tiburon Offers Excellent Day-Night Bay View

When waters are turbulent in Raccoon Strait, it's comfortable and satisfying inside the Caprice at the foot of the Tiburon Peninsula — and when they are calm and sunlit it's even more cheerful.

There is no doubt that the Caprice must be ranked among the foremost Marin "vista" restaurants. Travelers who lunch or dine there return home with a panorama of San Francisco Bay in their memories that probably surpasses any photograph they may have taken from nearby Elephant Rock.

Regrettably, so many Marin have such fine views from their own homes it is sometimes difficult for them to regard a place like the Caprice with the same enthusiasm as an outsider. They are likely to be hypercritical of the food and even "back off" without giving it a fair chance.

If by certain measurements Caprice dinners seem to be priced high, by what comparison should such a decision be made? By an "everyday" restaurant? Then indeed you do pay more. By a haute dinery in San Francisco, for example? Then the prices are right in line.

While if you are in the average income group you are not likely to be a weekly visitor at the Caprice, for that special occasion it beats crossing the bay anytime. Kirby Atterbury's menu here is on the French side, with many of his own recipes featured.

On lunches you can come out very well. Entrees are in the $2.50 to $5.25 range, which you would expect at a place like this. The daytime view is equal to its night time counterpart and the service is excellent. But day or night, it's important to make a reservation.

You will find a large selection of wines. Kirby and his wife, Rened, travel to Europe every year in search of the best vintages, and many are imported under their own label. One of the latter that I have found particularly satisfying is a Portuguese rose.

A WINE TASTING PARTY, open to the public, will be presented at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael Sunday from 4 to 7 p.m. by the Sonoma County Wine Growers Association.

There will be 10 wieries participating, along with the Marin French Cheese Co. and its Rouge et Noir products.

The tasting is sponsored by the Assistance Guild of Marin to benefit the Marin County Drug Abuse Program. Both Center Point and Open Hearts will receive benefits. Admission is $2.50 per person.

A variety of entertainment is on the program. Douglas Broyles of the Shakespearean Festival will sing and recite. There will be two rock bands, Fluid Drive and Sons of Light and also a special singing group, Infinity.

The tasting will be held in the Crocker Galleries, where a special art exhibit of paintings and scenes of provincial France will be presented.

This should be a very interesting event and it is for a worthy cause.

IF YOU LIKE THE COAST, eventually you'll drive through or at least as far north as Jenner, at the mouth of the Russian River.

The restaurant here that strikes your immediate notice is Jenner-by-the Sea, operated by Jerry and Hazel Berg. They feature seafoods — fresh catches in season and of course this varies from time-to-time.

Alltime favorites are the Bergs' clam chowder, which they will match alongside chowder from any restaurant, also their shrimp and crab louies and steamed clams.

They are open year round. Breakfasts are served from 6 to 11 a.m.; a la carte specialties from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. during lunch and dinner; complete dinners from 4 to 10 p.m. (on Sundays and holidays, 2 to 10 p.m.). There is a large bar area.

A NEW DINING GUIDE, listing only restaurants in San Rafael, has been published by the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce. It is compact and with one fold can be carried conveniently in the pocket or purse.

While only names, addresses and telephone numbers are given, it covers a wide range of eating establishments of all kinds and is indexed according to Continental, English, French and Basque, Greek, Italian, American, Mexican and Oriental foods, seafoods and coffee shops, hof brau restaurants, pizzerias, frankfurters, drive-ins and delicatessens.

It is available at the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce and at member restaurants.

LUNCHES HAVE BEEN DISCONTINUED at Little Joe's in San Rafael. This Fourth and Lincoln streets restaurant will concentrate on full-course Italian dinners. A new menu should be in print sometime next week. Dinners will probably be in the $3.75 and up range.

MAX STALEY of Sonapa Farms at 41 Throckmorton Avenue, Mill Valley, which is now serving dinners throughout the week from 5 to 9 p.m., has engaged Joe Moyle as chef. He is being assisted by Wilma Leet.

There is a chef's nightly special, along with cannelloni, beef stroganoff, sole meuniere and other popular entrees. Wines and beers are served, with many imported beers featured.

Sonapa's restaurant section will seat from 60 to 75 persons.

A NEW MONDAY NIGHT special at London Arms on the San Anselmo Miracle Mile

IRANIAN'S MISSION: COMPUTER STUDY

The language of the chattering computer is an international one being learned by Capt. Akbar Montamen Nejati (left) of the Imperial Iranian Air Force, as he monitors operations by M/Sgt. James Scoggins at Hamilton Air Force Base. Nejati is in the U.S. under an American Air Force program permitting him to study and inspect various air base computer operations. He will return to Iran next month. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

Special POW Day Of Prayer Is Set

A day of special prayers March 26 will begin a nationwide "Week of Concern" for the 1,614 United States military men who are prisoners of war or missing in Southeast Asia, according to Julie Butler of San Rafael.

Her husband, Air Force Capt. William Butler, now 30, has been a prisoner of war since his jet was shot down over North Vietnam late in 1967. She said yesterday that Congress has proclaimed March 26 through April 1 as an observance of the plight of the prisoners and their families.

In the Bay Area, a ceremony will be held at 11 a.m. April 1 in the parking lot at the south end of the Golden Gate Bridge. Fifty men will represent the states, answering a roll call reciting the number of servicemen captive or missing from each state.

March 26, start of the observance, is symbolic because it will begin the ninth year of captivity for Army Maj. Floyd Thompson, the first known prisoner captured by the Viet Cong.

Mrs. Butler said she last heard from her husband in February. "And I know that he got the first mail he was allowed to have from me in three-and-one-half years."

Park Bond Has Chamber Backing

Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce directors have voted to support the city's $195,000 park bond issue in the election April 11.

If approved by voters, the funds would be used for improvements to Alicia and Benecia parks.

The directors, meeting Wednesday, also named William Nighswonger, head of the political science department at Sonoma State College, as moderator of the city council candidates night to be held March 23 at 8 p.m. at Rohnert Park Junior High School.

Chamber secretary Sue Limoli said the 10 candidates each will present a short statement and answer written questions submitted by the audience.

DINING

(starting next week) is a bouillobaisse, prepared to Betty Johnson's own recipe. She and husband Don tried it out on a few customers a couple of weeks ago and found that it went over very well.

It's quite a concoction, with clams, prawns, lobster, oysters, scallops, fish and I don't know what else — a full meal.

CELIA'S NO. 5 at 1 Vivian Way, San Rafael, reopens tonight after extensive remodeling, and will have its grand opening on Sunday from 3 to 10 p.m. This is a much better arrangement than before.

Family-style dinners are featured (Mexican and American food). There is a large cocktail area and a mariachi group will perform Sunday.

IN NAPA COUNTY, construction has begun on a new and larger winery for Souverain Vineyards, in keeping with the burgeoning California wine industry. Designed by Sausalito architect John Marsh Davis, it will be located on the east side of the Napa Valley just off the Silverado trail, east of Rutherford. It is due for completion by this year's grape harvest.

It will feature also a planned country home development on 300 acres of rolling land into 2.5 to 12-acre parcels, and a country inn, which will consist of cottages set among the olive trees. Grubb and Ellis is handling this project.

"My Personal Wish."

"My early apprenticeship in Baden-Baden and Nuremberg taught me that being a Maitre d' is a true profession. But my own liking for people taught me that it is also a very satisfying profession. For 20 years I have worked with this philosophy. In Europe. Aboard great luxury cruise ships. At Ernie's, The Blue Fox, Alexis . . . and here at our Chez Pierre. Won't you dine with us soon? It will be my professional responsibility — and my personal wish — that you enjoy truly pleasant dining."

IRISH DANCE champions, Kathy and Mary Clare Hannan of San Rafael demonstrate the steps that have led each to international championships in their age groups. Both attend San Domenico School for Girls. Kathy is a sophomore and Mary Clare is a seventh grader.

THE HANNAN SISTERS

Top Irish Step-Dancers Grace San Domenico Student Body

By BARBARA HOSMER

San Domenico School can boast of having two of the top Irish step-dancers in the United States.

The students are sisters, Kathy and Mary Clare Hannan of San Rafael.

Kathy, a sophomore, has been dancing since she was 3-and-one-half-years-old, and she won the Western States title when she was 9 in 1965. Since then she has taken a title every year — including the California state competition beginning in 1966 and the International Minor (under 13) championship in Western Canada in 1968.

Two years ago Kathy danced her way to a win in the Oireactas, the qualifying competition to compete in the all-Ireland and the world championship. She went to dance in Ireland in May 1971.

"I didn't win but it was fun," she said. Then last month she won the Western states championship for juniors (under 16) and is qualified to dance again in Ireland in the world championship with winners from Australia, Canada, England and Ireland.

BUT SHE doesn't expect to get to Ireland this year. She plans instead to dance in the North American championships in Detroit at Eastertime and in July to dance in Canada. To go to Ireland in May would be too hectic and take too much time away from school, she has decided.

Kathy also dances at exhibitions with others from the McTaggart Irish Dancers of Oakland, and she will go to Sacramento Sunday to dance during tme Camellia Fstival as a part of the California Folk Dance Federation.

She said she participates in California city festivals, which are held about once a month, and has appeared on television shows, in ethnic dance programs in schools and for charitable groups. The Irish Center Club in San Francisco celebrates St. Patrick's Day today with a parade and ball, but Kathy will miss the celebration this year, as she is headed to Fresno instead.

Mary Clare, a 7th-grade student, is one of three other Hanna children who are dancers. She is the California and International minor champion. Eleven-year-old Tommy also is a medal winner.

THEIR MOTHER Mrs. Josephine Hannan of San Rafael, started the four of her six children on the dancing, which she learned in her native County Mayo, Ireland. Then they went on to dancing school.

TRADITIONAL scenes such as the Irish hound and sunrise depicted on Kathy's shawl, were embroidered on the girls' costumes by their mother, using transfers she obtained in Ireland. Mary Clare, who adjusts one of the Tara brooches holding the shawl, wears a blue costume, while her sister's is black with multicolored embroidery. Both dresses are from Ireland and are decorated by their mother, who is from County Mayo.

SINGLES AGAIN

Roles Spark Lively Round By Panelists

By JOAN LISETOR

Aggressive,dominant, independent, strong, all terms associated with masculinity and the opposites, passive, submissive, dependent and weak, are femininity-related terms, according to Charlotte Krause, a clinical social worker with private practices in Mill Valley and San Francisco.

Mrs. Krause sat on a panel last night during the final program of the You Are Single Again series, which the Marin Jewish Community Center has sponsored.

The highly enlightened panel also included Mel Krantzler, a divorce counselor and career counseling specialist; Dr. Phil Hicks, a psychiatrist, and Sylvia Boorstein, a College of Marin instructor in child and adult psychology.

Members of the audience interrupted the panelist several times to express desires to return to the topic, "What You Always Wanted To Know About the Opposite Sex," but the panel members returned agacn and again to the subject of roles, although, ironically, each expressed strong negative attitudes toward roles.

"A WOMAN is afraid she will be considered abnormal if sme does not accept the role of wife and mother, and she will let herself suffer, if need be, to adapt to a life even if she finds it uncomfortable and unfulfilling," Mrs. Krause said.

Women are conditioned to cater to a man's needs, she said; if necessary, they will suppress their own needs to achieve what is considered femininity, and a man is not considered masculine if he caters to his wife's needs.

"It is threatening to perform an act that is associated with the other sex, a threat to the image of one's self," Mrs. Krause said.

The women's liberation movement, in which she is deeply involved, is bringing about a change in self-images and a change in views about the opposite sex, she explained. Carrying the views into the traditional concepts of dating makes being single difficult, she said.

"It hurts to pay for my own dinner, but I would feel hypocritical if I didn't," she said.

While the law discriminates against women, anyone who assumes that is the entire problem is missing many parts of the story, Mel Krantzler said.

"I have a revulsion to roles. We should relate to another person as a person. We are trapped by our language to the use of the word 'man,' and we are trapped in roles trying to get out."

"ON THE RADIO we hear snide comments about women's liberation, advertising reinforces male and female chauvenistic roles and television sets up an enormous resistance to cultural change," he said.

"The women's liberation movement is the first step toward seeing people as individuals," he said.

Sylvia Boorstein discussed recent magazine articles about the role of a vocation in a marriage. One case was a woman who found her vocation incompatible with her job and chose to give up the marriage, not the job. If housewives are necessary, is it necessary they be female, she asked.

"If you are a spinster and your friends ask when you are going to settle down, tell them you are settled down because being settled down doesn't necessarily mean being married," she read.

"Men are locked into roles, too," she said, citing the case of a hypothetical 37-year-old husband, father of four, insurance salesman, who lives in Terra Linda. He decides he wants to become a poet, go live in the desert and write poetry for a year. His marriage has gotten in the way of a vocation," she said.

"Men are locked into roles too," she said. "I don't know any liberated man who is not married to a liberated woman."

Freud's ideas about women were Victorian, but compared to others in the 1890s and early 1900s he was a liberal, said Doctor Hicks.

"TEXTBOOKS FREUD used 70 years ago said women should not enjoy sex. He wouldn't have agreed with that theory, although he was a male chauvinist," he said.

When it comes to putting women down, the chief offenders are women, he said, because they are the victims of brainwashing to the fact that they are second class citizens.

"If you take the women's movement at its face value you are missing the importance of it. What it is saying unconsciously is, 'We are going to show men how to be men,' and it is avoiding addressing the problem directly, which is men are acting like women," he said.

As a psychiatrist he sees his purpose as helping the individual adjust to himself, rather than to society, he said.

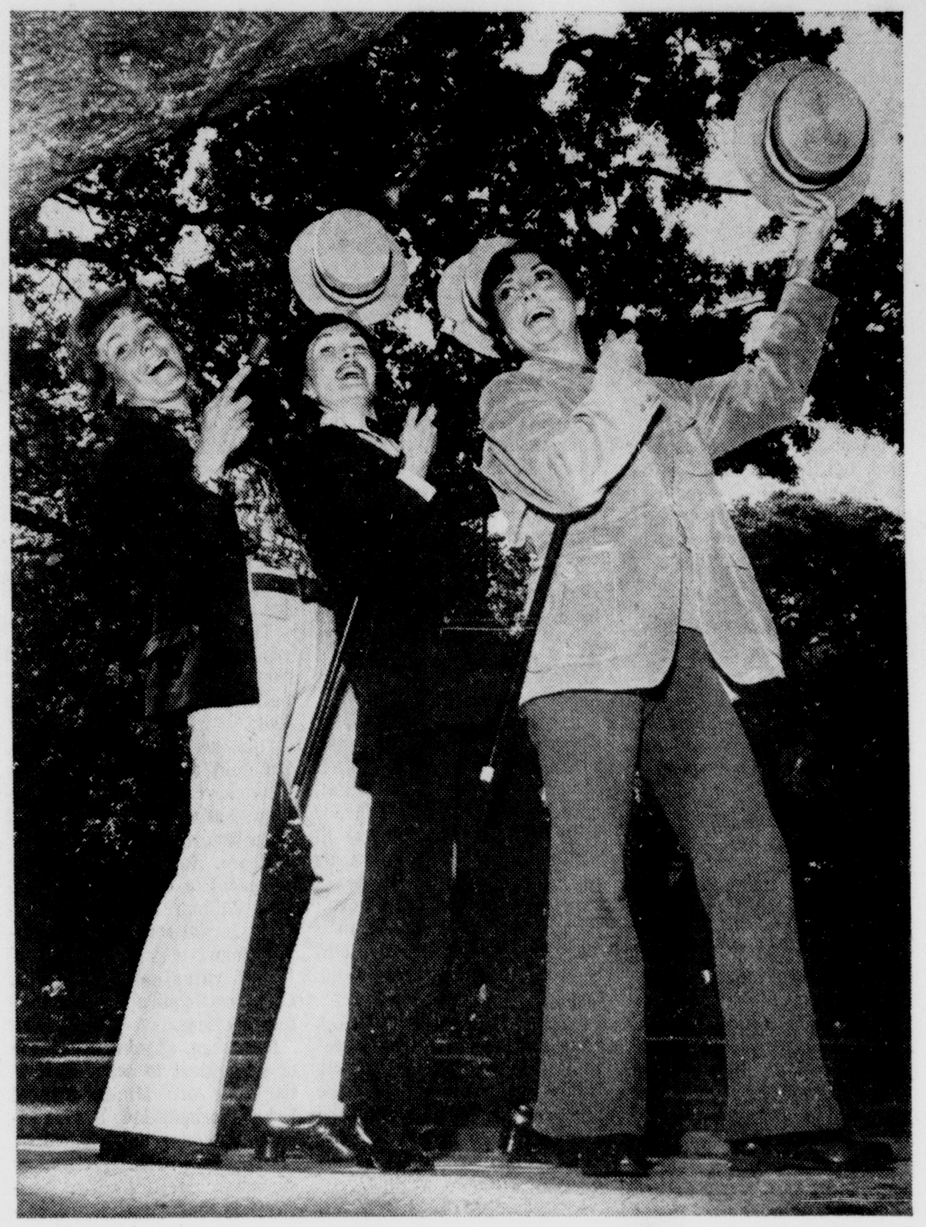

"SOCIETY SHOULD permit us to grow from within. We wouldn't care about behavior roles, and we could just be human beings," he said.

Regard the opposite sex as a person somewhat like yourself except for a few external differences, he advised.

Defending an attack on the women's movement by a man in the audience Mrs. Krause said, "The media are basically hostile to the movement and important issues often are ignored. In the movement we call one another 'sister' to develop the concept of other women being our friends and not seeing them just as competitors for a man."

Panel moderator, Bernice Rollins, who coordinated the series for the center, announced at the program's conclusion that an open meeting would be held at the center at 8 p.m. Thursday to discuss the continuation of a series for divorced persons.

The ushers usually get the job of rolling out the aisle carpet after all the guests are seated.

LITTLE OLD 'SOFT SHOE'

Opening the show yesterday for the Sausalito Woman's Club annual Jinks was a scene spoofing the election year. Here the candidate joins her "ad men" in a soft shoe dance. They are (from left) Sandra Olzen, Nina Roy and Peg Gildersleeve.

One of the activities of the auxiliary this year will be sponsorship of a horseshow, she said.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Take Him If You Just Want Someone To Share Apartment

DEAR HELEN:

I thought Jeremy was married, but it turns out there was no ceremony. He just moved in with this woman 10 years ago and never got around to moving out. He says they're more friends than lovers, go their separate ways, and share expenses mainly for convenience. Very casual.

Well, I'm not casual about him. We've been dating for four months and it's time he made a decision, as he says he loves me. But he thinks it would be "cruel" to walk out on this woman since she depends on him and they own so many things jointly.

He's never mentioned marriage to me, but I think if he got a place of his own, the idea would soon come to him. How can I get him to move? — NAN

DEAR NAN:

A man who has successfully avoided marriage over a 10-year live-in isn't an easy catch. You might get him to move, but I doubt it would be toward the altar. He's an apartment-sharer, not a husband: if you're looking for permanence, look elsewhere. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Hospital emergency rooms may get their patients mixed up now and then and provide the wrong treatment, as that letter in your column claimed, but I'd like to present the other side of the coin.

Most doctors today, rather than make house calls, aim their patients toward hospital emergency. The personnel there are so overworked that they rarely find time for as much as a coffee break. When you operate at fever pitch for long hours to help suffering humanity, mistakes do happen.

I've seen lines of people outside the emergency room at a local hospital, standing when they should have been lying down, because there's no room inside.

I've heard about a group of doctors somewhere who will make emergency house calls if a central number is called but, unfortunately, that isn't in our area. A friend became so ill with flu complications that his personal doctor (of 15 years standing) was called. Though the doctor lived only a mile away, he refused to come out, referring the man instead to the hospital. (He never made it.)

When our televisions quit, a repairman is on the spot almost immediately. But when our bodies go out of whack, we must bundle them up and take them in for service to ac overcrowded facility and sometimes hours of agonized waiting.

Tell me, are there any Dr. Welbys in real life? — A.P.

DEAR A.:

Marcus Welby M.D. is nostalgia — one of the reasons he remains so popular.

But. . .a word in favor of doctors: Hospitals are equipped to handle emergencies. Their complicated life-saving machines can't be brought to you, but an ambulance can get you to them in a hurry. Isn't this better than stop-gap treatment at home which might waste valuable minutes while the doctor makes his diagnosis? Moreover — and here is a big factor in the demise of the house call — health insurance covers hospitalization, but pays only a small fraction of the fee for a home visit.

So blame modern technology more than your doctor —and tune in Welby-Kiley Tuesday nights for a dose of the good old days. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You probably got a lot of flak from "weekend widows" who hoped you'd tell the musical husband to quit his second job in a band. (Note from H: That I did!)

I too resented my husband's enjoyment that left me home alone. But instead of insisting that he quit, I bought a set of used drums and taught myself to play. Soon the three-piece band made room for a fourth member: Me! For four years now we've been entertaining at various clubs and dances and having a ball, as well as earning needed extra cash. If you can't beat 'em, join 'em —and beat the drums. You'll be a — WEEKEND WIDOW NO LONGER

Infants Tested: Atherosclerosis

Newborn infants from families with a history of heart disease are being tested at University of Cincinnati's medical center to help determine the need for early prevention of atherosclerosis.

The research project soon will be extended to older children referred by private physicians. Where indicated, treatment to control or lower cholesterol levels through diet in the infant, and diet and medication in the older child will be recommended.

Dr. Charles J. Glueck, who heads the research team, believes cholesterol-lowering started at birth will control hardening of the arteries.

ON BEING BLACK

A Constant Fight Must Be Waged To Survive Elements

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

"In my day, a young jasper killed someone over his woman, but, huh, it wasn't himself."

The old man shook his head slowly as he spoke of his grandson they had just buried. The young man had committed suicide after agonizing over a love affair with a young white girl whose parents were violently opposed to the interracial relationship.

"That's what happens when you young folks get whitey-fied and city-fied," the old man went on. "Start thinking crazy. In my day, there wasn't no time to be thinking about killing your own self. Huh, if you looked cross-eyed, Master Charlie do it for you. In my day, you was thinking about how to keep on living, not dying. If this here integration starts you to thinking like a fool, I'm not sure I go along with it," he said, shaking his head again. "All the women there are in this world — damn fool thing to do."

Suicide, of course, is not an ethnic activity peculiar to blacks. But, according to experts in the field, suicide among blacks has been steadily on the increase and it is particularly prevalent among young black males.

TO SAY that those blacks who do commit or attempt to commit suiide do not have a variety of emotional and psychological problems would be erroneous, but in many documented cases of suicides and attempted suicides among blacks, there is clearly a racial overtone to the action.

Recently, a young black high school administrator shot himself. In the notes he left behind, he expressed despondency over the racial turmoil that existed at his school.

It's a sad dilemma. As we blacks "move on up" — as we become more integrated, acclimated, assimilated and so-called civilized — we also absorb all the psychoses and neuroses of the white society and add them to our own store of nutty-isms.

SUICIDE PREVENTION is the most widely known organization active in the prevention of suicide. It has offices in most cities across the country. A person who is despondent and contemplating suicide can call their phone number — usually listed in the telephone book and even in the personal columns of the local newspapers — and immediately reach a sympathetic ear.

In the San Francisco-Oakland area there is a new group involved in suicide prevention — Blacks Against Personal Wipe-Out (BAPWO). This title was selected particularly to reach young black males and is made up of lay persons, family and friends of victims of suicides and attempted suicides, as well as professional people, a psychiatrist, psychologist and counselors.

The members of BAPWO feel that potential black suicides very often need someone black to talk to — to relate to. Someone who knows "where blacks are coming from."

Many blacks are not too hot on seeking the services of psychiatrists, psychologists and counselors, and most can't afford the luxury anyway.

"I don't want anyone walking around in my head," is a common expression.

BAPWO is attempting to act as a sympathetic liaison group and referral service to seek out the services of black professionals.

Part of their philosophy: From the git-go — "If you feel like you want to scream, scream on!" Verbally ventilate that anger. We'll listen, then try to help.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

North Develops Two-Stage Finesse For No-Trump Victory

Most of the scientists who have studied the finesse under electron microscopes declare that it has many peaceful uses. In spite of this, most bridge players are content to take finesses as they find them. Only the scientific player is willing and able to manufacture a finesse from scratch. In today's hand South had some pretty good scratch and was able to do a good job of manufacturing.

NINTH TRICK?

South has only eight tricks in high cards. How does he develop his ninth trick?

Declarer should rule out the possibility of a 3-3 break in spades. West's takeout double is known to be light in strength and should therefore be strong in distribution. West should have length in both majors and shortness in clubs.

The best chance for South is to play West for Q-x, J-x or 10-x of clubs. South therefore refuses the first two heart tricks and wins the third heart with the ace. Now he is ready to go after the clubs.

PRELIMINARY FINESSE

The first step is a preliminary finesse. South leads a low club from his hand and finesses with dummy's nine.

East wins with the ten of clubs and returns the ten of spades. West plays the jack, and dummy must win with the ace of spades to keep West out.

Declarer now leads the king of clubs from dummy. This drops West's queen.

MANUFACTURING IT

This completes the manufacture of the club finesse. Declarer leads the six of clubs from dummy and finesses with the eight from his hand. When this finesse succeeds, South has nine tricks.

This type of two-stage finesse works only when declarer has the eight and the nine in separate hands as well as the ace and king. What's more, anybody who executes such a play will always tell you with a straight face that he wouldn't have bid so much if that eight had been a seven.

DAILY QUESTION

What do you say?
ANSWER: Pass.

You have 12 points in high cards, but only one quick trick. This is far from enough for an opening bid.

Wilkins: Nixon Leading The Mob

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, charged today President Nixon has aligned himself with racial segregationists who oppose busing and "is leading the mob which is tearing at the concept of equal protection of the law."

"Our president has made his choice," Wilkins said in testimony to a House Judiciary subcommittee.

Nixon is expected to make his position on busing known shortly.

FROM KIEV TO THE COLLEGE OF MARIN

The Yale Russian Chorus, a veteran touring group, is shown performing in Kiev in the Soviet Union last year. The group will perform in the College of Marin Fine Arts Building Theater at 8:15 p.m. March 25. Proceeds will go to a scholarship fund of Katherine Branson and Mount Tamalpais schools.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Assn. Magazines and Parent's Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Blue Water, White Death" — An expedition which starts at South Africa and on to Ceylon and southern Australia in hunting man eating great white sharks. Fascinating documentary.

"Boy Friend" — Nostalgic and a brightlq entertaining musical featuring the acting debut of the well-publicized Twiggy who makes it excellent fare.

"RA Expedition" — The research and building of reed boats and the incredible 3,270-mile expedition to prove the theory that Egyptians reached the West Indies 2,500 years before Columbus.

"Toklat" — A nature study follows the development of a bear cub to its maturity. An old sheepherder after years of friendship with the bear is forced to eventually hunt him. Beautiful color photography.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Pocket Money" — Modern western treated as comedy about three American men buying cattle in Mexico and their misadventures. Confused ethics.

"Something Big" — A cavalry officer and an outlaw leader who are about to retire after pulling off "something big." The outlaw tries to kidnap a woman he can trade off for a Gatling gun. He happens to pick the cavalry officer's wife. Sex jokes are often in questionable taste.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"French Connection" — An exciting suspense thriller about two relentless narcotics detectives trying to crack an international heroin smuggling ring. Much violence.

"Last Run" — George C. Scott makes a routine gangster movie more vivid. A former ace getaway driver, he decides to make one last run helping in a jail break. Ample violence, bloody shoot-outs, sex and cursing.

"Pink Angels" — Sex hairdressers on the way to a "gay" ball travel by motorcycle confusing the police and girls along the way. The fun begins when they meet some real "Hell's Angels." (Boxoffice Magazine)

"Summer of '42" — Three 15-year-old boys at a summer resort island during World War II are obsessed with sex and its mysteries. How they are enlightened, is handled as low key drama. Very frank language.

"Taking Off" — The director portrays the parents of a runaway 15-year-old girl doing all the wrong things to try to find her. A brutally funny scene of an amateur rock talent contest is very honest and revealing. Obscenities, nudity.

"Vanishing Point" — A super antiestablishment hero decides to do "his thing" — drive from Denver to San Francisco in 15 hours regardless of what stands in his way. A pointless boring story plus violence, cursing, sex and nudity.

"Who Is Harry Kellerman" — A top folk rock song writer approaching middle-age is being persecuted by an unknown Harry Kellerman. He lives in terror of old age and madness making it difficult to distinguish the real from the imagined. Nudity and cursing.

ADULTS ONLY

"Alfie" — self-centered young man wanting just fun and games, plays the field unmindful of the pain he causes. An uninhibited British serio-comic character study cynically intimate and brazenly frank.

"Dealing" — A teacher and student serve as agents in shipping dope, the police are also in the trade. Plot deals with bargains each must make. Usual sex, nudity, etc. (Motion Picture Exhibitor Magazine)

"Klute" — Psychological mystery with a sordid background of brutality. Realistic picture of the life of a high-priced call girl. Very slow moving. Much profanity, nudity, sex.

"Last Picture Show" — The moral degeneration of a small Texas town is graphically shown through the eyes of an 18-year-old boy. The pattern of life seems to evolve around nudity, sex and cursing, all explicitly shown.

"Such Good Friends" — Slick, sophisticated view of life among New York's rich and arty. Graphic sex, nudity and cursing.

"Sunday, Bloody Sunday" — An offbeat subject subtly treated. A divorcee and a doctor are both deeply and obsessively in love with a handsome young man who refuses to commit himself.

"Where's Poppa" — A hard hitting black comedy is a relentless attack on momism. How a harassed, guilt-ridden son handles falling in love when his 80-year-old monstrous mother tries to turn love's young dream into a nightmare. Nudity, rape, many obscenities.

War Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Anne Francis will play a war correspondent in the otherwisa all-male cast of producer Frank McCarthy's "Fireball Forward."

Tiburon Hits Claims On Building Ban

The City of Tiburon has rejected a claim for $1.8 million, possible prelude to a law suit by property owners who claim the city's moratorium on building has injured them.

The claim by developer Laurence Kay and members of the McNaught family alleges the city, by imposing its emergency building breeze while it considers acquisition of open space land has prevented planned development of property and made useless $35,000 in planning costs.

The proposed development, 160-unit townhouses, were to be located on 15.6 acres between the Tiburon Peninsula Club and Old Saint Hilary's Church. The plaintiffs said that if the city pays the $1.8 million they will turn that property over to the city.

Developer Kay has an option to buy the property from its owners for $31,000 an acre.

The 90-day building freeze which was imposed Jan. 31, has stopped development while the city council decides whether to condemn ridgelands in order to gain open space.

Guests For Benefit Announced

A benefio concert featuring Roland Kohloff, tympanist of the San Francisco Symphony, and James Gettys, tenor, will be given at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building on March 26 at 3 p.m.

The guest artists will appear with the San Rafael High School orchestra, a cappella choir and symphonic band. A special sonsorship ticket, which includes admittance of two adults and printing of the contributor's name in the program, is available.

Proceeds will help send 175 San Rafael music students on an April tour of Northern California and Oregon. Appearances will be at Sacramento State College, Shasta College, Redding, Ukiah, Cottage Grove High School in Oregon and the University of Oregon.

Kohloff, a member of the San Francisco Symphony for 16 years, will leave this fall to become tympanist of the New York Philharmonic.

Gettys will perform with the a cappella choir. Before coming to the United States, Gettys, professor of music at San Francisco State College, studied in Sweden, Italy, England and Germany, where he was principal tenor in many opera theaters.

QUIET PLEASE

The pitter-patter of little feet, and big feet, too, is now hushed at the San Rafael Library. The library reopened yesterday after a week's closing for installation of the carpet throughout both floors. The color of the carpet is described by its manufacturer as "paprika," but P. Denis Selle, city purchasing supervisor, said it was brown.

Kentfield Students Reflect Environment

Students in the Kentfield School District, like their peers in most of Marin, scored higher last year than the grade average on state tests, the district psychologist reported yesterday.

Jack D. Williams also found that as students reach higher grades they move farther and farther ahead of their grade level. For example, second graders tested last June read four tenths of a year ahead of the state average, but seventh graders were more than two years ahead.

Many of the students in junior high school actually scored above the tables in the comprehensive tests of basic skills administered by the California Test Bureau, he said.

It was found that second grade students were at a level comparable to most students midway through the third grade, Williams said. Seventh graders were from two to three years ahead in reading, language, arithmetic and study skills, Williams said.

The students, however, proved relatively weaker in grammar, spelling and math computation, the drearier subjects, he said.

Reed Parents Seek To Keep Two Schools Open

A group of about 50 parents in the Reed School District has voted to keep both the Tiburon and Belvedere schools open, despite a decrease in enrollment in the district and a surplus of classrooms.

At a meeting Wednesday night of the district's small schools fact-finding committee, attended by three members of the Reed School board, the parents asked that the schools be kept open despite estimated savings of about $19,000 per year if they were closed and the children sent to a larger school elsewhere, said Sherill Brooks, secretary of the committee.

The committee reported that neither of the school buildings could be sold to benefit the district, since money from any sale would go to pay off bonds, she said.

A straw vote taken at the meeting showed only one person in favor of having her child in a larger school, Mrs. Brooks said.

She said board members present argued that the economies would benefit the whole district, whereas keeping the schools open would benefit only a smaller portion of the district.

Switchboard Course To Be Offered

Marin Suicide Prevention Center directors have completed plans for a College of Marin adult course to train volunteers to man the crisis switchboard at the center.

Richard Reubin, center executive director, said registration for the course will open Monday evening at the college. The course in suicide prevention and crisis intervention will begin April 4, he said.

Directors also heard that a group of 25 volunteers will complete training Tuesday to begin taking shifts at the center's telephones. Board members nominated Jamshid A. H. Bakhtiar, board president, and directors Rae S. Taub and Gary Luchese to represent the Marin organization on the Bay Area Suicide Prevention board.

Students Hear Mountain Play

The colorful, 55-year tradition of the Mountain Play is being recited to Marin County schools, service clubs and other groups by Mrs. Richard Hein, 150 Oak Avenue, San Anselmo, according to Alvin Guthertz, publicist for the play.

On invitation from groups, Mrs. Hein will display slides and photos of past performances and recall behind-the-scenes happenings.

This year's production, "Rough 'n Ready," written by Dan Totheroh, will be performed at the outdoor amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais on May 14 and 21.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1972 23

IS IT FOR REAL? — Chipped beef on toast is out and such delights as grilled steak and rissole potatoes are in at the Battery B mess hall at Fort Barry, which has been chosen the best Army mess in the U.S. The question is, what's happening to Army morale amid the barrage of goodies?

NO. 1 MESS HALL

Not French Cuisine, But . . .

By PAT ANGLE

One of the Army enlisted man's favorite hobbies and most enjoyable pastimes — complaining about the quality of Army chow — is in serious jeopardy at Battery B at Marin's Fort Barry.

"Hell," protested a well-fed young recruit as he heaped his plate with a second helping at the battery mess, "how can you gripe about the food from a place that's been chosen the number one mess in the country?"

In a recent competition, the tiny mess hall, having defeated similar single-unit dining facilities at Army Air Defense Command bases at area and regional level, was chosen the best in the nation from among more than 100 ARADCOM mess halls.

Top secret rumor has it that Battery B commanders, concerned about the crisis in morale which might result if their men have nothing to complain about, have asked the Pentagon for emergency assistance.

A top Army spokesman told the Independent-Journal that Pentagon officials have tried to solve the critical problem by having the culprit, mess steward Sgt. Oliver Browder, transferred to duty in the Pentagon cafeteria, but have been unsuccessful in removing him from Battery B.

In an effort to determine whether the battery's mess hall was indeed a threat to national security, this reporter made a thorough fact-finding tour of the facility.

At first glance, everything appeared normal. The hall's squat, box-like exterior, with its coat of hospital green paint, seemed in harmony with Army regulations. A few disturbing signs — carefully mowed, lush lawns and some flowers — were visible.

But once inside, it was impossible to ignore the fact that some insidious scheme was afoot to undermine the spirit of America's fighting men. The place looked more like a pleasant little cafe than a military mess.

The interior was a sight that would have sent the most hardened old sergeant into shock — an obvious communist plot, down to the bright red tablecloths.

In place of the traditional All-American cracked plaster walls and ceilings was effete wood paneling and acoustical tile. Can the Army really hope to build a strong defensive force in the midst of pristine white curtains, soft lights, plants, a stereo, landscape paintings, soft drink and milkshake machines and flowers on every table?

NEW OUTLOOK — Good food and a cheery eating atmosphere are the goals of Sgt. 1/c. Oliver Browder, mess steward, and Sp. 5 Vernon Walker, cook, in the Battery B mess hall at Fort Barry. I like to experiment to make the food taste better," says Walker.

A glance at the daily menus made one wonder of our defenders can be expected to flourish on meals which include pork chop suey, grilled steak, biscuits, rissole potatoes, spring salad with vinigrette dressing, golden glow salad with chiffonade dressing and peach shortcake.

Should an enemy attack occur during the dinner hour, would the approximately 100 men at Battery B be willing to rush from the table to man the missiles which form such a crucial link in the ARADCOM defense of the West Coast?

Is it patriotic to prepare special short order dishes, such as hamburgers, chiliburgers and pizza for men who don't care for the daily fare offered at the mess? In the old days, as any Army veteran can tell you, one kind of food — usually as unappetizing as unskilled and disinterested cooks could make it — was served at each meal and those who didn't like it could go without.

The theory behind this practice apparently was that after several months of this kind of treatment even the most unagressive young man would be mad enough to go to war and fight just about anybody. Are tired and trusted theories of warfare being cast aside at Battery B?

The depth of the conspiracy was quickly revealed by interviews with sergeant first class Browder, a mess cook, a few soldiers who had the insolence to be eating their lunches with real enjoyment, and the battery commander.

"sergeant Browder and his assistants are very interested in what they are doing and spend a lot of time on their work," said Capt. Jerry L. Buckley, battery commander, without a trace of shame. Buckley also admitted the mess steward, in direct violation of the Army's traditional motto of "never volunteer for anything," was taking extra correspondence courses in mess management.

Managing to break through a web of tight security, the I-J also learned that Browder and his staff bake their own rolls, cakes and pies and that — most subversive of all — they are delicious.

In fairness, it must be said there were some hopeful signs that the Army has not deteriorated completely, such as Browder's admission that he could not even boil an egg when he was drafted into the Army in 1962 and assigned to mess duty. But these were offset by the fact the sergeant has since become an extremely competent cook and mess hall manager constantly looking for new recipes and buying cookbooks.

In the Army's Golden age, it was the main idea in the minds of mess personnel to slap a meal together and get away from the place as soon as possible. But this, alas, has changed, too, if Battery B is any example.

As E6 Johnnie W. Sledge, a 15-year Army veteran, put it: "The cooks go out of their way to do the best they can for everybody. In fact, they even get a little perturbed if you're not happy with the food.

Another soldier, Pfc. Felipe Tijerina, pointed out another ominous trend. "There's hardly any harassment toward the cooks," he said. "They get a lot of compliments these days."

One cook, Sp.5 Vernon Walker, went so far as to admit he really enjoys cooking and hopes to go to San Francisco State College to become a chef when he leaves the service.

"I like to experiment to make the food taste better," Walker said, apparently not aware that an officer could easily overhear the conversation. "I try to find out if the men like the standard way I prepare a dish or if they like it better if I add something, like different spices."

A sampling of the luncheon offerings, including a savory stew, a spicy chop suey and a pineapple upside-down cake, proved Walker's experimentation was producing food of the quality found in a pretty good restaurant. None of the mess personnel seemed aware of the adverse effect their efforts could have on the safety of America.

Perhaps the most serious breach of Army tradition was disclosed by Lt. Douglas L. Walker, battery executive officer and mess officer, who must take some of the blame for the dining hall situation.

Walker said that when the battery was awaiting the inspectors who would select the best ARADCOM mess in the nation, many of the battery's men gave up free time to mow and trim the lawns, wash windows and even do voluntary KP in preparation for the inspectors' visit.

Sometime this summer, the tiny Battery B mess will compete with similar units through the entire Army for the title of best mess in the world.

If the Pentagon does not investigate the entire operation by that time and take decisive action, Battery B's good food policy could spread throughout the world and our nation's defenses could crumble like dominoes.

How does the Army plan to get contented, happy, satisfied men to go to war? How will it get the troops away from the mess tables and into the trenches?

Mayor Putnam On Panel For Life Quality

Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam will be one of three panelists speaking April 7 in San Francisco on the need for legislation to improve the quality of life.

They will speak at a luncheon titled "The Delicate Balance" at noon at the Holiday Inn, Kearney and Washington streets. Other panelists are San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas and Assemblyman Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco.

Mrs. Putnam will discuss the pressures of a growing society from a suburban view and Boas from the urban view. McCarthy will discuss state issues.

Reservations are being handled by luncheon cochairman Olive Lewis at 464 Magnolia Street, Larkspur. Sponsors of the luncheon are the women's divisions of the Marin and San Francisco Democratic State Central Committee.

Novato Youths Set Dimes Trek

About 20 Novato youths are scheduled to join a 20-mile walk- athon in Alameda tomorrow to raise money for the March of Dimes.

Greg Abbott, a 15-year-old Novato High School student, promoted the local participation as an Eagle Scout project.

Those who march will raise money for each mile they walk from sponsors.

Abbott, son of Nancy Abbott of 535 Eldridge Avenue, hopes the Novato walkers will raise $1,000. "He has pledges totaling $500 on his own," Mrs. Abbott said.

Thumbs Down On Bus Depot Plea

Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday laughed to death a plea by Marin Countx that they help finance bus depots in the county.

The district's transportation committee tabled the plea, agreeing that the problem was Marin's and that the district already was spending millions of dollars on buses and ferries to help the county's commuter problem.

The only dissent in the vote was by Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, who argued the depots deserved district help because they were part of the bus system.

His undoing came when he said how much he wanted from the district — $100 to $150 a month. He apparently meant this sum was needed for both the San Anselmo and Mill Valley depots.

Amid guffaws and comments that "you should have asked for $1,000," the committee killed the proposal. Even director Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley backed off, conceding the plea never should have been made to the district.

San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras summed it up for the committee: "It's such a small amount; they should do it themselves."

Golden Gate Bridge District directors, meeting as various committees, also:

BUS — Recommended the bus transit staff be increased from 293 to 304 employees at an additional annual cost of $99,086.

GRANTS — Recommended creation of a new position to handle paperwork for federal grants at a monthly salary of $1,325.

SUMMER — Asked the staff to consider use of district buses on summer weekends to handle recreational traffic to West Marin.

PROMOTION — Recommended a $13,850 supplemental appropriation for the rest of this fiscal year for public relations consultants Arnold and Palmer and Noble. The firm already has been budgeted $24,000 for transit promotion. The appropriation was based on a charge of $35 an hour.

Red Cross Is Seeking Funds

The Marin County Chapter of the American Red Cross today appealed for donations to replenish coffers depleted by recent Atlantic Coast floods.

Emergency relief operations are expected to require more than $2 million in West Virginia, Maine and Massachusetts, where 6,500 families' homes were damaged. The collapse of a watersoaked slag heap dam on Buffalo Creek, W., Va., cost more than 100 lives and displaces 2,000 families in the area.

Relief donations may be sent to the Marin Red Cross Chapter, 727 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, according to Nancy King Hayden, chapter publicity chairman.

Bus Fleet May Double By 1977

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Golden Gate Bridge District's fleet of buses will double to 300 buses within five years, its bus transit manager predicted yesterday.

The current fleet of 154 buses already is at its capacity of 6,000 commuters, reaching loads within two months that were not expected until next year, reported H. Donald White.

"We've been the victim of our success," said Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum, a bridge district director.

White's prediction that the fleet will have to double to accommodate growth came before the district's transportation committee, which approved his proposal that federal funds be sought to buy 34 more new buses.

The district owns 134 buses and has a lease through this year on 20 used Greyhound Lines buses. Twenty more new buses have been ordered for delivery by July, thus the district's fleet of new buses will total 188 by next January if the 34 recommended yesterday are bought.

The committee dropped White's pleas for an option on a second order of 34 buses because a hearing on the first 34 already has been set for April 19. It was too late to change published notices of the hearing.

White said 225 to 250 buses will be needed within two years, but added he did not want to seek federal funds now for 100 additional buses. Postponing bus orders would allow the district to get buses with pending improvements, perhaps even gas turbines, he said.

White estimated the total cost for each new bus at $1.7 million, or about $50,000 apiece, including fare boxes, radios, spare parts and preparation for service. With a two-thirds federal grant, they would cost the district $566,677.

These additional buses will permit service to Tamalpais Valley and East Corte Madera, and improve service to existing routes, he said. Some commuter service also may begin to Peacock Gap, Santa Venetia, Sleepy Hollow and Lucas Valley by the end of the year, White added.

He contrasted the 6,000 commuters on district buses with the 4,000 carried by Greyhound lines before the district took over the service on Jan. 1.

Failure to keep pace with expanding patronage will drive some commuters back to their cars, "and once lost, these patrons are hard to regain," White said.

He noted that in the Novato area more dwelling units already have been approved than were planned between 1970 and 1990, and that an additional 6,950 units are proposed.

San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras cautioned that doubting the commuter bus fleet would have a "very serious" impact on downtown San Francisco traffic. No mention was made of the traffic impact if an additional 6,000 commuters took their cars instead of buses.

10 Marinites Due U.C. Davis Degrees

Ten Marin County students will be eligible for bachelor's degrees at June commencement ceremonies of the University of California at Davis.

They include John A. Amberg, Estelle P. Arens, Gail M. Davis, Richard G. Lazzarini, Robert E. Martinez and Linda J. Walker, all of San Rafael; Herman K. Kamai, Corte Madera; Susan J. Marchant, Kentfield; Norman N. Olsen, Novato, and Cindy P. Ewing, Tiburon.

Library Speaker

D. J. Tobin, associate regional director of the National Park service, will talk about the "National Park Centennial — 100 Years of Conservation" at a public meeting of the Novato Friends of the Library at 2 p.m. March 26 at the Novato Library.

Rich Italian Radical Dies In Explosion

MILAN, Italy (UPI)—Giangiacomo Feltrinelli, a publisher whose triumphs ranged from "Dr. Zhivago" and "The Leopard" to Fidel Castro's memoirs and Ernesto "Che" Guevara's diary, was identified Thursday as the man who apparently died trying to knock out the power supply to this city of 1.7 million.

Feltrinelli, 45, disappeared in 1969 after police said they wanted to question him about unspecified crimes. It turned out later they wanted to ask him about a series of terrorist bombings.

His mutilated body was found Tuesday at the foot of a huge tower used to relay most of Milan's electrical power. One leg was blown off, there was a deep wound in one side and pieces of bone and skin were blown 50 feet away.

Scattered around his body were 43 sticks of dynamite.

Police said it took them 24 hours to identify the body because the victim was carrying forged identification papers. He apparently was the victim of his own bomb which he planned to use on the tower.

Following Feltrinelli's death, police launched a nationwide crackdown on leftwing extremists and searched scores of homes and offices. Police would not say what they were searching for but sources indicated it was connected to Feltrinelli's death.

Ironically, Feltrinelli was as much a puzzle in death as he was in life.

A millionaire by inheritance, Feltrinelli took quickly to radical politics but other extremists were less than eager to embrace his ideas.

Rightwingers said he was a firebrand revolutionary and extreme leftwingers said he was an amaoeur political camp follower.

"I offer you solidarity and my ideas," Feltrinelli told a leftwing student organization not long before he disappeared in 1969.

"Give us five million lire ($8,600) instead," the students replied.

Feltrinelli became internationally famous when he published Boris Pasternak's "Dr. Zhivago" in 1958. How he got the book is still a mystery. He followed the success with "The Leopard" by Giuseppe Tomasi di Lampedusa, published posthumously in 1960.

After that, his politics became even more extreme.

He became a personal friend of Castro and published the Cuban dictator's memoirs. He also published the diary of Guevara, Castro's former top lieutenant who was killed in Bolivia in 1967.

Feltrinelli drifted from communism—with a stint as a hippie—to pacifism, Marxism, Trotskyism and anarchism. On the way he fashioned a fortune estimated at more than $6 million.

Four tires valued at $240 were taken from two cars parked at Brown Motors, 933A Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, sometime prior to 5:45 p.m. yesterday, San Rafael police reported today.

Population Curb Report Draws Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A presidential commission's call for universally available abortion, contraception and sterilization encountered quick opposition today from the U.S. Catholic Conference and a few of the commission's own members.

Suggesting the report be treated with "benign neglect," the Catholic Conference called it "naive in its assumptions and punitive in its recommendations."

Rep. John N. Erlenborn, R-Ill., one of the commission's 24 members, said he hoped the report would not be interpreted as a proposal "that contraceptive devices be sold through vending machines in school corridors."

However, 19 commission members joined in the report's recommendation that women be allowed abortion on demand, with costs covered by public and private health insurance and with government subsidies to pay abortion costs for the poor. Insurance coverage also was recommended for contraception and sterilization.

Two members dissented from the recommendation that teenagers be offered spdcial programs of birth control, including contraceptives.

ZERO POPULATION

The report, issued Thursday

The report, issued Thursday by the Commission on Population Growth and the American Future, said the goal of zero population growth could best be met by eliminating unwantdd pregnancies.

The commission cited a Princeton University study concluding that 44 per cent of births to married women between 1966 and 1970 were unplanned, with 15 per cent of the children unwanted by ther parents. Another study of unmarried teenage girls "reveled that 14 per cent of 15 year olds and up to 44 per cent of 19 year olds reported having had sexual relations," the commission said. "Only 20 per cent of these girls used contraception regularly."

The commission also called for more federal spending to develop better contraceptives, and for repeal of laws in roughly half the states prohibiting contraceptive advertising, store display and vending machine distribution.

It said public attitudes should change so women could stay single, or marry and choose a career rather than children, without social stigma. To help achieve this the commission recommended adoption of a constitutional amendment insuring equal rights for women. The amendment has been passed by the House and the Senate debate on it began today.

BONUSES REJECTED

The commission rejected proposals to reduce the birth rate through sterility bonuses, tax incentives or welfare limitations. It called for more day care facilities for working mothers, but opposed a provision in the House-passed welfare reform bill that would require welfare mothers to use day care so they could work.

Calling for sex education for adults and chcldren, the commission said its proposals would "increase ethical responsibility and the opportunity for unbiased choice" in child bearing.

"At the same time, by enhancing the individual's opportunity to make a real choice between having few children and having many, between parenthood and childlessness, and between marriage and the single state, these policies together will undoubtedly slow our rate of population growth and accelerate the advent of population stabilization," the commission said.

The commission, which promised a future report on immigration and population distribution policies, was chaired by John D. Rockefeller III, retired chairman of the Rockefeller Foundation and elder brother of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

New Open Space Meeting Location

A special meeting of the Tiburon City Council to discuss city acquisition of open space has been moved to the music room of Del Mar School Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The meeting had been set for the city council chambers, said Asst. City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert, but a regular meeting of the board of adjustments forced the shift.

Residents of Tiburon will have an opportunity to express views on whether the city should try to acquire property on the ridgelands overlooking the city. The property is under a 90-day freeze on development to give the city time to make up its mind on the issue.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Peptic Ulcer Commonest Cause Of Bleeding From Upper Tract

Gastric hemorrhage is a frightening experience, mainly because the victim cannot see or control the source of bleeding. Anxiety mounts, especially when the cause is not known and there is no immediate indication that it is going to stop. In these situations, the best place for the sufferer is in the hospital under the watchful eye of nurses and doctors. If necessary, transfusions, diagnostic tests, and emergency surgery can be performed.

Peptic ulcer is the most common cause of bleeding from the upper gastrointestinal tract. If a person has had an ulcer for many years, the cause is not a problem. But now and then, bleeding turns out to be the first sign of peptic ulcer. A case in point involved a 30-year-old priest who was rushed to the hospital in a state of shock. We learned that he collapsed while talking on the phone to his monsignor.

THE MAN told of vomiting blood and passing black tarry stools. Shortly thereafter, he felt weak, thirsty and perspired profusely. Before the sudden collapse, he had never had pain or other gastric distress. The hemorrhage was the first symptom and indication of trouble. The bleeding stopped spontaneously and X-rays revealed a large ulcer in the stomach.

Other causes of bleeding from this area are tumors, including malignancies, enlarged viens at the lower end of the esophagus associated with cirrhosis, hiatal hernia, and erosive gastritis. Some physicians try to pinpoint the source of blood immediately. Others are more conservative and avoid doing any testing hoping that the hemorrage will stop spontaneously. Much depends upon the severity of the hemorrahage and the individual's age.

TO FIND the bleeding point, the stomach may be washed out with ice water and then X-rayed. Or, a gastroscope is passed to take a peek into the stomach. More sophisticated X-ray studies also are utilized, such as putting a special dye into the arteries to determine which vessel is leaking. Treatments vary from continuous ice water lavage to frequent feedings and antacids. Surgery may be necessary.

(Question on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

FROSTBITTEN

R. A. writes: A few years ago, my hands and legs were frostbitten. Ever since, these areas start itching whenever I go out in the cold. Can this discomfort be prevented?

REPLY

After frostbite, the hands and feet become exceedingly sensitive to cold. The skin may blanch or turn purple; the fingers and toes tingle or itch and usually feel cold.

ERYSIPELAS

C. E. B. writes: Is there a vaccine against erysipelas? My husband has had two attacks of this disease on the face.

REPLY

No, but the antibiotics cure so quickly that a vaccine is unnecessary.

THEY'RE ALL GOOD

V. F. writes: What are the most valuable fruits and vegetables for children?

REPLY

Take your choice — oranges, grapefruit, apples, bananas, potatoes, and numerous green and yellow vegetables.

Naval Wife Is Charged With Spying

PORTSMOUTH, England (UPI)—Mrs. Maureen Bingham, who said she nagged her British Navy officer-husband into spying for the Russians, was charged today with violating the Official Secrets Act, too.

The 35-year-old mother of four went voluntarily to Havants police station for questioning by detectives on statements she made to newsmen aftdr her husband, Sub-Lt. David J. Bingham, was convicted and sentenced Monday to 21 years.

Detective Chief Inspector Norman Hughes, who led the investigation against Bingham, issued a statement: "Maureen Bingham has been charged with an offense contrary to the Official Secrets Act. She will appear at Havants Magistrates Court later today."

Her husband was convicted under the espionage section of the act.

A spokesman for the Director of Public Prosecutions said Mrs. Bingham was accused under a section of the act which, among other things, declares guilty of an offense any person who attempts to persuade another person to commit an offense under the secrets act.

After he was sentenced Mrs. Bingham told newsmen she had nagged her husband into selling British secrets to pay off the family's debts, had herself gone to the Soviet embassy to offer his services and had been the intermediary between him and Russian spymasters.

"I shall never know why I was not charged as well," she said. "It was all my fault."

Candidates Contrast Ideas For Mill Valley

By MARC NURRE

The quality of life, retention of the city's rural character and city finance emerged last night as issues in the race for three city council seats in Mill Valley.

Six candidates told an audience of more than 150 persons what they thought were the major problems facing the city, then fielded questions for the remainder of a two-hour candidates night.

Some stands were common to all candidates, but each had is own priorities for change in the city.

Thomas N. Belsky, an artist, said opposition to the war in Vietnam was an overriding concern of his, and that municipal governments should try to stop what the federal government has not.

Skipping to another matter, he advocated that the city drop its contract with the county and take care of its own dog problem. The current situation, he said, is "nonsensical . . . you're taxpayers," he told the audience. "You're going to pay for this?"

"Why don't you sit down," a man in the audience yelled out.

"I got eight minutes. (The prescribed time limit) I'll use 'em any way I want, dig?" Belsky retorted. The audience laughed and applauded.

Belsky went on to the question of what areas, if any, Mill Valley should annex, and dealt with it quickly. "They got something to offer, let 'em join," he said.

"I'm sure you think I'm some kind of nut," he said later. "Well, I don't."

Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission, told the audience, "Mill Valley can become a fool's paradise if it fails to realize how easy it is to destroy what it has."

He said the city's property tax rate is a crisis. "In the last six years, the taxes on my own home have doubled," he said.

He proposed a review of all city programs with an eye towards cutting back on what is unnecessary, looking to county and state agencies as other methods of financing services and a freeze in hiring until money problems can be worked out.

Robert E. Capron, an attorney, said he felt the chief problem in the city is the methods used in making municipal decisions.

He called for greater "people-involvement" in city government, and said all points of an issue should be made clear so there is no needless argument before the city council.

If elected, he said, he would encourage the publishing of summaries of council business which would be distributed in business, and another summary of the city budget well before final budget hearings.

He also called for periodic town meetings.

Incumbent City Councilman Jerome C. Hauke, a civil engineer, stressed fiscal responsibility in government.

"Running a government is not much different than running a family," he said, "and I have a large family." The city has limited resources, he said, and someone must say "no" to requests.

He defended the city's tax rate, saying it is the only city in the county which provides all municipal services to its residents instead of letting them depend on special districts.

Someone must give the town direction, he said and he cited his experience of four years on the council as the reason he is qualified to do it.

Robert E. Burton, a life insurance executive, called for a greater diversity of persons by culture, politics, age and race. "We're too upper middle class," he said.

Burton advocated a search for carefully controlled commercial development to broaden the city's tax base, and said the city should push for the growth of low cost housing.

He urged stronger planning controls, and said the city must have a complete general plan. A member of the planning commission, he said it was his urging which eventually gave the city design review of two recent developments — Kentucky Fried Chicken and Howard Johnson's.

Adolphus Jaeger, a businessman, called for a "common sense" approach to government, and said he was concerned with the basic services offered by the city.

He pledged, if elected, to work for the repeal of the $150 per month salary to councilmen, and said the money could be better used to hire an additional policeman.

"People are awfully reluctant to walk the streets in this city at night, it's a terrible thing to say, "Jaeger told the audience. "We have 1.3 police per 1,000 people and the average should be two," he said.

Present Tax Base Will Be Kept

Members of the Bel Aire Advisory Flood Control Zone Board have voted to retain the district tax rate of $1 per $100 assessed valuation, according to Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer.

He said he told board members at their Wednesday meeting that two projects, dredging a mud bar by Greenwood Cove and the improvement of the channel from the cove to Greenwood Cove Drive, would have to be postponed for a year because of difficulties in getting permits.

Instead, he said, the board voted to substitute the enlargement of a culvert on Karen Way to use the money allocated for the other two projects. The change requires the approval of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, Murphy said.

Murphy also told the board that completing major projects called for in the floor control master plan in the Bel Aire area would cost about $350,000, or about $400 for a $30,000 house over a 15-year period. The board discussed the possibility of financing the work by bond issue, but took no action.

The five-member board also considered a proposal to enlarge itself to seven members to gain representatives from the Ridge near Bel Aire, according to Murphy. The proposal will be presented to the supervisors, he said.

Boxer Challenge To Opponents

Barbara Boxer, challenger for the Second Supervisorial District seat, has asked for a debate with opponents Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Dr. William S. Filanti.

She also asked the two men to agree to a $7,500 limit on campaign spending and to divulge sources of all contributions, the first of each month prior to the June elections. She said she would list her financial supporters in the press.

She said the three actions would "restore the public's faith in the electoral process."

Library Bookmobile Hours Are Extended

The Santa Rosa-Sonoma County Library bookmobile in East Petaluma has extended its hours and is now open from 10 a.m. to Noon and 1 to 4 p.m. every Wednesday at the Petaluma Plaza.

The bookmobile formerly was open only from 2 to 4 p.m. Books and recordings for both adults and children are available.

Guide Dog School Featured Program

Sewage Plan Notes To Be Compared

San Rafael Sanitation District directors have bowed to a request that the district consultant in effect compare notes with himself before the district finally adopts its long-range master plan for sewage treatment.

Norris M. Rawles, district administrator, reported that directors on Wednesday discussed a letter from the Regional Water Quality Control Board. The bay watchdog agency asked that the San Rafael district's study by consultant John Jenks of Palo Alto be coordinated with studies of the Marin subregional overall sewage plan. Rawles pointed out that Jenks already is a member of the consortium of consultants working on the plans for Central and Southern Marin.

The San Rafael district directors at first objected, then agreed to the formal coordination, Rawles said.

The directors also ordered repair of $2,500 vandalism to the walls of the South San Pedro Road pumping plant, and granted an extension to March 29 for completion of tests on the new Francisco Boulevard pump station.

Governor Selects New Prison Warden

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Veteran correctional officer Daniel J. McCarthy was named by Gov. Ronald Reagan Wednesday as warden of the California State Prison at San Luis Obispo.

McCarthy, 58, deputy superintendent at the California Men's Colony at San Luis Obispo since 1967 succeeds Harold Field, who retired from the $23,712-a-year post. McCarthy began his career in 1949 as a correctional officer at San Quentin.

Vida Blue Leaves A's To Enter Business

By RON SUPINSKI

OAKLAND (UPI) —Next move in "The Holdout Game" involving ace lefthander Vida Blue is up to owner Charlie Finley.

Or is it?

Reading from a carefully worded prepared statement with his agent, Robert Gerst, standing nearby, the 22-year-old pitcher of the Oakland Athletics announced Thursday he was retiring from baseball to become a business executive in Los Angeles.

CHUCKLE

Blue, one of the best pitchers in the game who last year was the Cy Young Award winner and Most Valuable Player in the American League after compiling a 24-8 record, chuckled when he said he was offered a job as vice president in charge of public relations for Dura-Steel Products of Los Angeles.

Finley apparently heard the chuckle 2,000 miles away in his insurance company office in Chicago.

'WONDERFUL'

Said Blue: "This is a wonderful opportunity for me and one that I feel I should take. It is with deep regret and sadness I announce my leaving baseball."

Countered Finley, owner of the A's: "I'm happy to hear that he is entering the steel industry and starting out as a vice president. If Vida is half as successful in steel as he has been in baseball, he has a great future ahead of him."

Then, the needle.

"I, too, was associated with the steel industry, as a worker with U.S. Steel Corp. in Gary, Ind. I worked there for five years, the first four of which I served my machine shop apprenticeship."

Finley made no mention about budging from his "final" offer of $50,000 to Blue this season. Blue, who earned $14,750 last year, has been advised by Gerst to hold out for $92,000.

'SERIOUS'

Blue said he was "serious" about taking the Los Angeles job because two months of contract negotiations with Finley have proved fruitless.

The lefthander, dressed in slacks, a sport shirt and sneakers, said he spoke with Finley on the telephone as recently as Wednesday but they were unable to come to any agreement. Blue said he and Gerst offered 10 alternatives to Finley in an effort to break the stalemate but the owner rejected all of them.

VIDA BLUE
Retired pitcher

They included a proposal to have Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn set up an arbitration or a mediation of the dispute and a request to sell or trade Blue or allow him to play in Japan.

Finley also turned down Blue's request to allow him to play for $50,000 this year if he can become a free agent next year.

"It is clear thal I am faced with a difficult decision—either to sign and play for a salary which I feel is unfair judged by existing standards in baseball or leave baseball and start a new field," said Blue before he left the news conference with a companion in a borrowed car.

CADILLAC

The new Cadillac with the license plates "V. Blue" given to Blue by Finley last season was nowhere in sight.

To speak of retirement from baseball is relatively easy but to actually accomplish it is a horsehide of a different color.

To officially retire, Blue must notify the A's in writing and the resignation must be forwarded and accepted by Kuhn. Then Blue automatically cannot play for the next 60 days of the season. This has not yet been done.

MIXED EMOTIONS

Blue's manager, Dick Williams, and his teammates greeted the news with mixed emotions at the A's training camp in Mesa, Ariz.

"We certainly hate to lose Blue and that has to be the understatement of the year," said Williams. "But I feel we can win with or without Vida. We have a lot of good young arms and this will open the gate for a few guys (like Chris Floethe, Dave Hamilton and Dennis Myers) to make the club."

First baseman Mike Epstein said, "I'm sorry for Vida. He obviously hooked up with the wrong guy (Gerst)."

Tommy Davis, who shared an apartment in Oakland with Blue last season, said, "I'd like to see him in uniform but I respect his decision."

OFFER

Outfielders Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi and Curt Blefary all felt Blue could have doubled Finley's offer of $50,000 by lending his name to commercial enterprises.

"He's foolish for giving up $50,000," said Blefary. "He could have made it $100,000 with endorsements."

Finley said he "regrets to learn" of Vida's decision.

"If Blue changes his mind, and I hope he does, the A's will be very happy to welcome him back," said Finley.

Long Beach Next Foe For UCLA

PROVO, Utah (UPI)—Number one UCLA is off and running towards the 1972 national basketball title with a devastating, 90-58 win over unheralded Weber State in the opening round of the NCAA western regional playoffs.

The five-time defending champion Bruins now meet Long Beach State, winner over University of San Francisco, 75-55, to set up a rematch of last year's Western regional title battle in Saturday's finals.

With the win Saturday comes a berth in the NCAA finals March 23-25 in Los Angeles.

"We expect to see Long Beach concentrate on (Bill) Walton," said UCLA coach John Wooden. "It's a good gamble if we shot as poorly as we did Thursday night."

"Weber overplayed Walton, leaving our other boys open for good shots. But unless we shoot closer to our season average we're headed for a long night." UCLA hit 51 per cent over the season.

The Wildcats jammed up the keyhold in an effort to stop the 6-11 sophomore All-America center, only to be shot off the court by Walton's All-America teammate Henry Bibby and Bruin forward Larry Farmer.

Long Beach Coach Jerry Tarkanian says his 49ers will "need a super game Saturday to beat UCLA. I have a lot more doubt about our chances this year than I did last year."

Long Beach went to its strength in the 20 point win over San Francisco and All-America guard Ed Ratleff and 49er forward Chuck Terry responded with 16 points apiece.

The 49ers duo picked up the tempo with Long Beach trailing 4-2 in the early minutes and hit 14 straight points while San Francisco managed only a single basket.

The Dons mounted a full court press to cut off the 49ers scoring threat, but San Francisco was never able to close the gap and trailed 33-22 at the half.

SPORT NOTES

Tar Star Smith Needs Trip Funds

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Joe Smith, premier basketballer at College of Marin, Sunday begins his try for AAU stardom which means big things in an Olympic year but the school is a little short of funds.

It will cost approximately $300 to send Joe to the California Junior College Association all-star basketball trials and then the National Amateur Athletic Union tournament in London, Ky., March 24-28. The Associated Students of College of Marin has agreed to pay half the amount and Marin coach John Panagakis is hoping to get the rest from community donations.

For all you Marin rooters who want to help out, send the checks to the College of Marin Block M Olympic Fund, College of Marin, Kentfield, 94904.

Smith, who became Marin's all-time basketball scoring champion this year, is one of 15 cagers invited to the CJCA trials Sunday through Tuesday at Cal Poly in Pomona. The 11 players chosen for the team will leave Wednesday for Kentucky and the National AAU Tournament.

RUSS DILLON of Novato is making the most of his chance at the top. The 20-year-old southpaw pitcher is a non-roster player getting a "look-see" at the Atlanta Braves major league camp.

Yesterday he pitched two scoreless innings to earn a victory against the Texas Rangers. Russ struck out three batters and gave up only one hit as the Braves outlasted the Rangers, 15-14.

It was the former Novato High School star's second outing this spring. Monday he pitched three innings against the Minnesota Twins and gave up three hits, one walk and one unearned run, scored on a passed ball. He faced powerful Harmon Killebrew in that one, and got him to pop out.

Last year Dillon pitched for Greenwood, S.C., in the West Carolina League, a Class A farm team, but if he keeps up the good work in the Braves' Florida camp he'll move up a notch or two in class.

WALT MORENO showed off a trick shot last night during bowling action in the 845 Scratch League at Nave Lanes, but the shot was not by design. In fact, it's a near-impossible thing.

A left-hander, Walt was facing a "baby split," the 2-7 (which is the same as a 3-10 split for us right-handers). The normal way this shot is made is that the ball goes through the narrow gap between pins, striking them both. But Walt's ball broke so sharply from the left that it went between the pins, barely wiggling the 2-pin.

"I don't believe it," Moreno gasped.

I HOPE MARIN County's young swimmers have better luck in Los Angeles than did Marin's young hockey players. Some of the best swimmers in the Marin Aquatic Club will be trying for National AAU positions this weekend in the Southern California Invitational meet in Long Beach.

Last weekend Marin County's Pee Wee team of the Northern California Junior Hockey Association ventured to Los Angeles for a state showdown with teams from San Diego and L.A. The best Marin's kids got out of four games was one tie. But it was that way in all divisions as teams from Los Angeles dominated the show.

But it was a bad weekend all around for Marin Countians, the Tamalpais High School basketball team getting dumped from the Tournament of Champions after two losses and boxer Wallace Campbell of Novato losing his final Golden Gloves match to Erwin Williams of Oakland.

Warriors Throttle Portland

PORTLAND (UPI) —With the magic number set at four, the Golden State Warriors have a double incentive against the Portland Trail Blazers tonight.

Not only would a second straight victory over the Trail Blazers reduce the clinching number to any combination of three Warriors wins or three Seattle Sonic losses, it also would set an alltime winning mark for the Warriors. They have 48 wins to match the previous high for a Warrior team in the Bay Area set during the 1963-64 season.

Thursday night the Warriors moved two games ahead of the Sonics in their fight for the remaining playoff spot in the National Basketball Pacific Division by beating Portland 107-94.

Nate Thurmond snagged 18 rebounds and Clyde Lee 24 as Golden State dominated the backboards in the second half. Top scorer for the Warriors was Thurmond with 26 points including 17 in the first half.

Portland's Sidny Wicks took game scoring honors with 28 points.

Seals, Blues Collide

OAKLAND (UPI) — California's Golden Seals resume their quest for a playoff spot in the National Hockey League's Western Division tonight against St. Louis.

With eight games remaining, the race for the final two playoff spots in the division is getting tighter. The Blues are in third place with 59 points but the Seals and Philadelphia Flyers are only one point behind.

Pittsburgh has 56 points and is two points behind the Seals and Flyers. California skates against the Penguins Sunday night at Oakland.

After Sunday's game against Pittsburgh, the Seals have only one more game at home—against Minnesota March 31.

Lotte Orions Dump Giants

Ailing Willies Sidelined

PHOENIX (UPI) —San Francisco and the Oakland Athletics today complete their Bay Area world series in Arizona.

The Giants beat the A's 8-5 at Mesa March 9 but then San Francisco fell on hard times, losing five of their next seven games including the last four in a row.

the hands of the Tokyo Lotte O

Latest humiliation was 3-2 at the hands of the Tokyo Lotte Orions Thursday as Willie Mays and the limping Willie McCovey were given the day off.

The Orions collected only seven hits of John Cumberland, Skip Pitlock and Ed Figueroa but made them count. Six of the blows came off Cumberland. He also had a runner picked off third but threw the ball into left field as the unearned winning run scored.

Third baseman Alan Gallagher and rookie outfielder candidate Garry Maddox each hit home runs for the Giants. Maddox also had two singles.

HE MADE IT — San Francisco's Dave Kingman (45) arrived at second base before the throw as Tokyo Lotte Orions' second baseman Senda Keienke prepared to make a belated tag in exhibition baseball yesterday at Sun City, Ariz. Kingman took the base after a toss eluded the Lotte first baseman. Lotte won 3-2.

Beard In Golf Lead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) —Frank Beard, normally a notoriously slow starter on the PGA tour, had his problems compounded this year with the flu and a serious ear infection.

But Beard, aiming for his sixth straight year above the $100,000 mark, had his game finely tuned Thursday as he posted a 4-under-par 68 in a gusty wind and intermittent heavy showers to take the first round lead in the $125,000 Greater Jacksonville Open.

The flu sidelined Beard during the fourth tournament of the year at San Diego and he came down with the ear problem the following week while playing in the rain in the Hawaiian Open.

As a late starter Thursday, Beard was hampered considerably by the heavy afternoon showers which delayed play for 48 minutes. Al Geiberger, one stroke back at 69, finished his round as the showers began.

Seven players finished two strokes back of Beard at 70, including former U. S. and British Open champion Tony Jacklin, J. C. Snead, Jim Weichers, Grier Jones, Bob Murphy, Jim Hardy and George Hixon.

Arnold Palmer, who described his play as "awful," was at 71 along with Doug Sanders, Tommy Aaron, John Lister, Jim Gilbert, Rod Curl, Dick Lotz, Larry Ziegler and Jack Montgomery.

Defending champion Gary Player headed a large group at 72 and Lee Trevino posted at 73 along with Napa's Ron Cerrudo.

Petaluma Netters Fall In Opener, 4-1

Petaluma High School opened its 1972 tennis season with a loss yesterday, bowing to Cardinal Newman High School of Santa Rosa, 4-1.

Danne Hawley, Petaluma's number-three singles man, was the only winner for the Trojans, besting Cardinal Newman's Blair Magowan, 6-2 and 6-2.

Oakland Blanks San Diego, 4-0

PHOENIX (UPI) —Oakland A's manager Dick Williams is giving his young pitchers a lot of work this spring in hopes of coming up with someone to fill Vida Blue's shoes.

Five Oakland pitchers, including two youngsters with a chance to make the club, combined to shut out the San Diego Padres 4-0 on seven hits Thursday. Today the A's closed out their two-game spring exhibition series with the San Francisco Giants in Phoenix.

With news of Blue's "retirement" reaching the Oakland dugout during the game, the A's took advantage of three Padre errors to score three times in the fourth inning. The big blows were a double by Reggie Jackson and a single by pitcher Chris Floethe.

Floethe gave up one hit in two innings and Dave Hamilton did not give up any in his two innings. They are considered top candidates for the job which will be left open if Blue goes ahead with his retirement.

Ron Klimkowski gave up four hits in the first four innings. Darold Knowles was touched for two in a single inning and Jim Roland hurled one shutout frame for the A's.

Oakland's exhibition record is 4-4.

Marin Tars Decisioned In Baseball

A ninth-inning rally fell short and the College of Marin Tars sustained a 3-2 defeat in a Camino Norte Conference baseball game yesterday against Contra Costa College in San Pablo.

Frank Pomilia's two-out double drove home John Kidder, who had singled, but Pomilia was stranded on second base.

The loss went to Dennis Bueler, who was relieved by Rich Jensen in the seventh inning. "It was Bueler's first game since being out for a week with a bad sore throat," said coach Vic Petreshene. "I thought he looked good."

Mike Dito drove in the Tars' first run with a single in the fourth inning after Mike Parnow had singled and stolen second.

Marin, now 2-2 in the conference, plays at Santa Rosa Junior College Saturday at 1 p.m.

A class in goju-kai style karate will be taught at College of Marin in Kentfield, instructor John Pell announced today.

Classes will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings in College Center Conference Room B, and are open to students and non-students, men and women, said Pell, who is a 4th Dan. Persons interesed may contact Pell at 32 Clemente Court, Novato 94947.

Virginia To Seek Scott Injunction

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—The Virginia Squires plan to file a request in U.S. District Court in Phoenix, Ariz., for a temporary restraining order prohibiting former Squire Charlie Scott from further play with the Phoenix Suns.

Scott, who left the American Basketball Association Squires last Friday in a contract dispute, signed with the Suns of the National Basketball Association Monday and played in their game against Milwaukee Wednesday night. He was the leading scorer in the American Basketball Association.

Steve Harriman, a spokesman for Squires owner Earl Foreman, said Thursday Foreman was not "particularly optimistic" that the temporary restraint would be granted.

He said the request for the preliminary injunction would be made within 30 days after the request for the temporary restraint, which was to be filed today.

JACK HANLEY

S.F. Batting Coach: St. Pat's Dutchman

PHOENIX — "Hey, Honker," came the shout from the dugout of the Giants. Hank Sauer immediately identified the voice of the shouter even before he turned to acknowledge the greeting. And he knew why Horace Stoneham had shouted. This was St. Patrick's Day, the day on which Sauer, a Pennsylvania Dutchman, was born 55 years ago.

"The boss never forgets," said Sauer to someone standing beside him at the batting cage where he was doing his job as the team's batting instructor.

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY," Stoneham called as Sauer turned to flash a smile of appreciation to the owner of the ball club.

There is a very warm rapport between Sauer and Stoneham that transcends personal friendship. "I know what Hank has been doing in the morale department," said Stoneham. "He's wonderful with young players."

Sauer does have a way with young players. Perhaps his secret of success is due to the fact that he continually is pumping confidence into them without being a con man. He never tells a rookie he can put 50 points on his batting average.

"NO WAY, NO how, can I make a .300 hitter out of a .250 hitter," Sauer says. "I can correct faults and I can teach sound batting fundaments but a hitter must do the rest himself. If God-given ability —good eyes and a good swing —isn't there I can't give it to a hitter."

That kind of talk makes sense to young men who quickly are put at ease by Sauer. Occasionally, a brash young man will feel so much at ease after just one talk with Sauer that he will address the coach as "Honker."

On such occasions Sauer will roar at the rookie who dared to call him "Honker." Sauer will feign anger because of the allusion to his sizable schnozz. "You don't know me well enough yet to call me 'Honker'," Sauer will say.

STONEHAM APPOINTED Sauer to a combined scouting-coaching job in 1959 when Sauer finally conceded his 23 active years as a player were over. Sauer's first big assignment was to bolster Willie McCovey's morale.

McCovey had been a rookie sensation with his bat in 1959 after being called up in midseason from Phoenix. He hit .354 and won Rookie of the Year honors. In 1960, Sauer's predecessor as batting instructor believed McCovey would hit .400 if changed from a pull hitter to one who hit to all fields. And to complicate things for McCovey he was switched to the outfield and Orlando Cepeda was moved back to first base.

McCOVEY WAS so confused that he wound up batting .238 and he was sent back to the Giants' Coast League farm club. In the spring of 1961 Sauer spent hours with McCovey, batting fungoes to him in the outfield. After one session chasing flies for an hour, McCovey and Sauer had a good laugh.

"Let's face it, Hank," said McCovey, "my problem isn't catching the ball but catching up with it."

It wasn't long after that that McCovey was back at first base. Sauer had helped McCovey through a difficult period and Stoneham has never forgotten it. Neither has McCovey.

Players Of NFL Testify

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A number of professional football players, complaining they had nowhere to turn with their grievances, testified before a House Labor subcommittee Thursday in favor of a bill that would speed up NLRB grievance procedures.

John Mackey, a member of the Baltimore Colts and president of the National Football League Players Association, said the system was more at fault than was Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"We are not complaining about Rozelle personally but against his power," Mackey said. "We are against the system and we would be against it whether Rozelle or anyone else was the commissioner."

Mackey said that since the average career of an NFL player spanned only 4.6 years, it was difficult to expect them to wait out the several years it takes for a grievance to go through channels before the National Labor Relations Board.

Among the others testifying Thursday were Alan Page of Minnesota, the NFL Player of the Year last season, Tom Keating of Oakland, Brig Owens and George Burman of Washington and Sam Gruneisen of San Diego.

One of the requests the players currently have before the NLRB is that the owners stop installing artificial turf until its effects can be studied. In this regard, Gruneisen said, "Every game we play on artificial turf players wind up with their hands blistered and burned."

Admission Tax Collections Hit $830,000

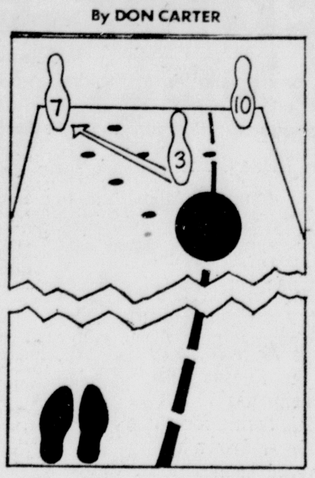

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— This city collected nearly $830,000 in new admission taxes from San Francisco Giants and 49ers games at Candlestick Park during 1971.

This brought the city's total revenue from the park to nearly $2 million last year. The money will be used to pay off improvements.

City controller Nathan B. Cooper told the board of supervisors Thursday the 49ers paid $318,405 for nine playing dates and the Giants paid $163,031 in rent for 81 playing dates. The city also collected $127,849 as its share of concession revenues at 49er games, parking lot revenue came to $317,614 and $435,368 came from the stadium's share of the hotel tax.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

The 3-7-10 split is not a common one. But when it does happen, don't give up — it can be made, and rather often. The trick is to ignore the 7-pin. Start from the left and concentrate on bowling the ball between the 3 and 10 pins. If you do, the 3 will probably bounce into the 7, and the ball will hit the 10 — and you can accept congratulations.

Bruins Slaughter Kings, 8-3

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Boston Bruins only had to go back to the root of their problem to straighten themselves out.

Caught in a mild slump after dropping a 2-0 shocker to Los Angeles a week ago Sunday, Boston caught up to the Kings on the West Coast Thursday night and handed them an 8-3 pasting. In their four previous games, the Bruins had been able to win only once while losing two games.

The victory enabled the Bruins to maintain their seven-point first place lead in the East Division over the New York Rangers, who snapped a two-game losing streak by edging the Detroit Red Wings 2-1.

In other National Hockey League action Thursday night, the Minnesota North Stars beat the Vancouver Canucks 6-2 and Buffalo and Philadelphia skated to a 3-3 tie.

Eight different players scored for the Bruins against rookie goalie Gary Edwards the same player who blanked them less than two weeks ago in Boston. The game was only 1:51 old when Bobby Orr put the puck past Edwards and the Bruins had a 5-0 lead midway through the contest.

Juha Widing scored two goals for Los Angeles, giving him a career high of 26 for the season, but Bruin goalie Gerry Cheevers had an ejsy time in remaining unbeaten in his last 29 starts.

Knicks Maintain Slim Title Hopes

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The New York Knicks are still alive in the "race" for first place in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division —just barely.

With the magic number for the Boston Celtics' clinching of the division title reduced to one, the Knicks found themselves trailing the Houston Rockets at Houston Thursday night 102-101 with three seconds left. Then Bill Bradley hit a 20-foot jump shot to give the Knicks a 103-102 victory and one more day to hope the impossible will happen.

The Knicks had still another close call when a 10-foot jump shot by Calvin Murphy went into the basket but referee Jack Madden ruled it hit the cords after the final buzzer.

Bradley scored 20 points, sharing team honors with Earl Monroe, and made four key free throws in the last 92 seconds to boost the Knicks from a 97-96 lead to a 101-96 margin with 1:19 left. Elvin Hayes led the Rockets with 37 points.

Gus Johnson scored 12 of his 18-point game total in the second period as the Baltimore Bullets beat the Cleveland Cavaliers for the first time after five losses this season, had an 87-73 lead after three periods, offsetting Cleveland's strong fourth period.

Archie Clark scored 24 points for the Bullets while Bobby Smith and Austin Carr had 26 points each for the Cavaliers.

Petaluma Triumphs In Baseball

Solis, who went two for four with a triple and a double, drove in Larry Cristani for the game-tying run. Moments later, Solis crossed the plate with the winning tally when Cougar pitcher Bob Haas' fastball sailed over Catcher Lou Goring's head.

FISH AND GAME

Some Get Fish And Some Don't

By AL GIDDINGS

I was really "put down" this week. I saw Sam Knoles in his boat trolling around McNear's Brickyard, the Sisters and Marin islands. I was watching him from the beach but even from shore, it looked like he was getting some action, so I went out to take a closer look. It was just about high tide.

He was with a friend, trolling pet spoons, number 15s and each with a pork rind. As I approached they yelled, "We got three aboard." This was enough for me, so I rigged up in about two minutes. I followed Sam's boat and in about 10 minutes he and his guest got a double (two fish on at the same time). Then a little later, they took another fish for their two limits. Me? I didn't get a hit. I stayed, they went in. I never did get a hit.

I figured I must have the wrong set-up, so I hustled up to Sam's house. I checked his gear, it was exactly the same except for his spoon. Even though it was a number 15, it was thicker than mine. Sounds ridiculous!

Then he gave me the business. He said, "I saved a fish for you in case you didn't get one." I took that fish — a five pounder. I would have taken that fish even if I had caught three bass, just to pull a fast one on him.

ANOTHER ANGLER had a big day too. Ray York of Novato and his wife tried trolling at the S.P. Buoy area (about half way between China Camp and Pt. Richmond). There were no birds working, but they trolled anyway. Roy hooked a big fish but fumbled the rod and the whole works went over the side. His wife, though, got lucky and snagged the rod which they retrieved. The fish was still on, a nice 20-pound striper. (This story isn't over yet!)

A few minutes later, they passed a life buoy cushion which they decided to also retrieve as it looked new. It had a line tied to it, so they pulled in the line. I know you think they got a sturgeon, but instead they hauled in a new anchor. (Some sturgeon fishermen, when they hook a fish, chase the fish with the boat, leaving the anchor at the spot marked by a buoy. I guess they couldn't find their marker on this one.) And me, I can't even catch a cold.

DUCKS UNLIMITED recently issued a report of its accomplishments for 1971. Field crews in Canada paid for by Ducks Unlimited members, worked on 116 wetlands areas with 76 marked "complete" at the year's end, along with another 30 operational and 90 per cent ready for returning ducks this spring. This record number of projects covers 100,000 acres of waterfowl habitat encompassing more than 1,000 miles of important shoreline.

During 1971 these projects required the expenditure of a record $2,600,000 by Ducks Unlimited (Canada). This ecological achievement was all made possible by a record-breaking year of success here in the United States as sportsmen-environmentalists gave Ducks Unlimited Inc. unprecedented financial support. Ducks Unlimited total income of $3,048,000 marks a 31.7 per cent increase over the previous record in 1970. California set the fund raising pace with $372,000. The number of conservationists contributing to this fund reached an all time high of 65,000 members.

COINCIDENTALLY, I just received a note from Kurk R. Toohey, chairman of the San Francisco area of D.U. He wants you to set aside the evening of March 26 at 10 p.m. to listen to Radio Station KABL. It will be a Ducks Unlimited question and answer night with you to participate if you so wish. Just phone in your questions during the interview. I'll give you more details in a later column.

A WORD OF warning! More and more small boats are heading out through the Gate for salmon each year. Running a boat in S.F. Bay is one thing, on the ocean another! Even though the Bay may be calm, your arrival at Pt. Bonita just outside The Gate may give you the feeling that some days it doesn't pay to get out of bed. You should at least check with the Coast Guard or the party boat fleet on conditions before you're suddenly in trouble.

I errored in Tuesday's column when I listed some abalone tides for this month from the June page of the tide book. Forget them. The season for abalone opens March 16, all right, but the first series of low tides starts Friday, March 17, at 6 a.m. The tides will be low all through the rest of the week from March 18 thru March 25. Clams and cockles are also in season if the -0.6 abalone tides aren't low enough for you.

GORDON CHAN of the College of Marin and John Sansing of the Point Reyes National Seashore are guest speakers at the Marin Rod and Gun Club tonight at 8 o'clock. The topics will revolve around the tidewater areas of the National Seashore. I noticed in Wednesday's I-J that I am scheduled to speak against the closing of the National Seashore areas. These closures were ordered by the Fish and Game Commission and it would be against Departmental policy for me to debate against their actions. I will discuss all of the 1972 Commission Regulation Closures in Marin County for your clarification if you so desire.

Danny Murtaugh To Direct Stars

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The old boss is coming out of retirement.

Danny Murtaugh, retired manager of the World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates, accepted an invitation from National League President Chub Feeney to manage the NL in the July 25 All-Star Game in Atlanta.

Fireballer Nolan Ryan allowed one hit and an unearned run but walked eight batters in four innings as the California Angeles beat the Milwaukee Brewers 6-1.

Graig Nettles hit a three-run homer and drove in six runs to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 12-8 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Rookie Burt Hooton held the Indians to one run in the first five innings...Rookie Jorge Roque's fourth-inning single drove in the decisive run in the St. Louis Cardinals' 2-1 victory over the Houston Astros...Willie Crawford had two singles and a double, raising his spring average to .316 and pacing the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-2 decision over the Minnesota Twins. Los Angeles pitchers now have allowed only three runs in their last 36 innings...Phil Gagliano drove in four runs as the Boston Red Sox offset homers by Al Kaline, Norm Cash and Willie Horton to defeat the Detroit Tigers 10-6. Red Sox player representative Gary Peters announced the team voted 19-4 in favor of a strike if the clubowners do not increase pension fund contributions by March 31.

Third baseman Jim Fregosi, who suffered a broken right thumb early in training, will have X-rays taken today and says he may begin workouts with the New York Mets Saturday or Sunday. The New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds played a 1-1 tie halted by rain after 14 innings.

Rookie first baseman Tony Muser had four hits and catcher Ed Herrmann collected three in a 20-hit assault that gave the Chicago White Sox a 9-5 victory over the Kansas City Royals. Herrmann has 10 hits in 14 at bats this spring for a .714 average...Oscar Brown hit a two-run homer for Atlanta and Jim Driscoll and Roy Foster hit three-run homers for Texas as the Braves outslugged the Rangers 15-14 in 10 innings.

Elrod Hendricks knocked in two runs with a triple and a single and Doyle Alexander pitched four shutout innings leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-2 triumph over the Pirates. Hendricks' winning hit came in the seventh inning after Merv Rettenmund singled and stole second.

Washington '5' Coach Greenwood Out After 1 Year

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)— Bob Greenwood's tenure as head basketball coach at Washington State lasted only one season.

Despite weeklong denials that he was stepping down, Greenwood resigned Thursday. Sources close to the university claimed the main reason for his leaving was friction between him and some of his players.

The former coach at Rider College, Washington University and the University of Iowa, Greenwood compiled an overall coaching record of 244-142. His Cougars had an 11-15 record last season.

Gov. Wallace Proves He Can Pick Issues

George Wallace proved Tuesday in Florida that he can pick the issues.

The issue Wallace picked was school busing. The Alabama governor, famed for standing in a schoolhouse door to block integration, played it to the hilt in his Florida campaign. He told his audiences (always to roars of applause): "You vote for me and they're going to stop busing little children to Kingdom Come."

And as they couted up the votes that showed Wallace getting better than 40 per cent in a seven-candidate race, they were also tallying ballots in a Florida straw vote on whether busing children to assure racial mix in schools should be outlawed by the United States Constitution. Seventy-five per cent of the Florida voters said it should.

THE SUNSHINE STATE'S Democratic primary showed the importance of the busing issue not only in Wallace's overwhelming victory. Behind him came Hubert H. Humphrey, a late convert to anti-busing. Behind Humphrey came Henry H. Jackson, author of a proposed constitutional amendment to guarantee "freedom of choice" in selection of public schools. Fourth came Edmund S. Muskie, who has waffled on the busing issue.

And in fifth and sixth places came John V. Lindsay and George McGovern, who endorsed forced busing in their Florida campaigns and attacked Wallace for making an issue of it. Shirley Chisholm finished seventh.

Any politician can look at that lineup and see the light.

THE ISSUE EXTENDS far beyond Florida.

Also, it is not a white-vs.-black racial issue, though Wallace played it for that — as did Lindsay and McGovern from the other side.

That was proved last week end, when the National Black Political Convention in Gary, Ind., adopted a resolution condemning school busing for racial mix as "a bankrupt, suicidal method."

The National Black Political Convention said what California State Supt. Wilson C. Riles and others of his race have often said before: It is an insult to a black child to say he must sit beside a white child in order to learn.

THERE IS FINE irony in the National Black Political Convention and George Wallace speaking in the same tongue on the issue of forced school busing. But it is not just ironic. It shows that Wallace is closer to the people, better able to pick an issue, than most of those who aspire to the presidency of the United States.

Wallace is guilty of using the busing issue to promote racism. But so are those who insist that children must be bused to provide mathematical "integration" in classrooms — and who usually send their own children to all-white private schools.

Black people are no different from white people in wanting the best public education for their children — and wanting it brought to where they live.

Board Appointment Counter To Reagan Philosophy

By RUS WALTON

Governor Reagan has just appointed a devout liberal to the State Board of Education and conservatives are up in arms.

The liberal is Dr. David Allan Hubbard, 43, president of Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena.

To a man, the Republican legislators representing segments of the Pasadena area expressed strong opposition to Hubbard's appointment. Among those legislators are some of the governor's staunchest supporters: Assemblyman John L. Collier, Frank Lanterman and Carlos J. Moorhead, and State Sen. H. L. Richardson.

Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach, also opposed Hubbard's appointment. Burke paid a personal call on the governor to detail the theologian's left-wing background. To no avail.

PRIME MOVERS for Dr. Hubbard's appointment were Rev. Donn Moomaw, Reagan's personal pastor who recently resigned from the education board, and Dr. Alex Sherriffs, Reagan's special assistant for education.

Republicans in the Pasadena area, who have followed Dr. Hubbard's activities since he joined Fuller seminary, are especially upset. They report that Hubbard was an early and active promoter of compulsory crosstown busing to achieve integration of the Pasadena school system.

They also document their complaint that Hubbard was a prominent participant and backer of Pasadena "civil rights" demonstrations as far back as 1965.

One 12-year member of the Pasadena school board recalled that Dr. Hubbard constantly badgered him, accusing him of racism because of his opposition to compulsory busing.

IN 1969, as chairman of the Pasadena Urban Coalition, Dr. Hubbard presided over "Operation Understanding," a workshop on race relations. A feature of that workshop, sponsored by the Ford Foundation and a black power group, was a hectic sensitivity training session for community leaders.

Dr. Hubbard chastised the Pasadena Board of City Directors for failing to attend the workshop and its sensitivity training session.

As a key speaker at the workshop, Hubbard selected Walter Bremond, former head of the militant Black Congress. Two weeks earlier, Bremond had admitted to a Los Angeles County Grand Jury that he had given an automobile to Ron Karenga, head of the black pressure group, US. The Bremond auto was used as the get-away car for several US members who shot and killed two Black Panthers at a UCLA rally.

YEARS AGO the Fuller Theological Seminary was world renowned as a solid, fundamental bible school, famous for its "Old Fashioned Revival" hours.

Since Dr. Hubbard's arrival, Fuller has gone "modern" and left. Most of its old-line faculty members have departed. The school now boasts sensitivity sessions, and group dynamics, for young people.

All of this information, fully documented, was presented to Alex Sheriffs and to Governor Reagan as soon as word got out that Dr. Hubbard was being considered for the State Board of Education.

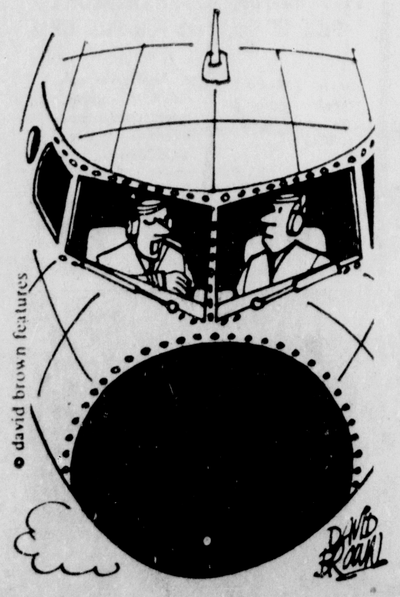

It obviously had no impact.

WHAT IS INVOLVED here is not Dr. Hubbard's right to be a liberal. He can go as far left as he pleases.

The question is: why was he appointed to such an important post by a govenor who ran as the conservative alternative to liberals such as Pat Brown and Jesse Unruh?

Alex Sheriffs readily admitted his avowed purpose to "put a liberal Republican on the board."

Rather Dairy Cows Than Doelger Homes

Profits or pastures? Northwestern Marin can keep its lovely pastoral quality through a proposed 60-acre zoning ordinance.

On March 21, the board of supervisors can vote this A-60 zoning into law. With no more than one residence for each 60 acres, west Marin can then stay pretty much the way it is.

However, some agricultural landholders want to sell their land. The highest bidders are developers. And so A-60 zoning faces a fight.

West Marin land is not essential for residential construction. There's space for more housing on the east side. West Marin development if not necessary for property tax revenue. The cost for schools, roads, police and fire protection, utilities and other services will offset the revenue.

I would rather see dairy cows than Doelger homes in West Marin.

Reader Looking For Polka Party

Several of us are interested in learning to polka, however, after looking through the I-J numerous times, I have been unable to locate either a polka club or know just where to start looking.

Possibly some of your readers might know where a group of us can learn to polka. We are not interested in learning all folk dances, just the polka. If so, I would certainly appreciate hearing from any of your readers who might know where several couples of us could learn to polka.

Depressing Statistics On Abortion Results

Is it at all possible that the six out of 10 adults favoring abortion for reasons other than mother's health (UPI, Mar. 8) are aware of the morbid statistics of Japan's laissez-faire abortion policy?

The 1969 survey of the Office of Prime Minister in Japan revealed therapeutic abortion statistics of 9 per cent sterility, 14 per cent spontaneous habitual miscarriage, 400 per cent increase in tubular pregnancy, 17 per cent menstrual irregularities, etc. Are these same people aware that the Japanese are suffering from a serious shortage of industrial manpower since there are vast shortages of certain age groups once the government overplayed the two children per family gimmick and made abortion acceptable as means of population control. Surely, those left unmotivated on moral grounds would be wise to take a lesson from the cold hard facts of the social impact created by tampering with nature's plan.

Town And Country Issue Confusing

Mrs. Priscilla Gray's letter to the Editor concerning an I-J story (Feb. 25) "Fight Warming Up Over Fairfax Zoning," prompted me to review Max Friedman's recent Fairfax mailer. His mailer mentions the forthcoming April election where voters will decide whether recreaton-commercial zoning is appropriate for his Marin Town and Country Club. Upon review, my first impression of his mailer was confirmed; it is confusing.

Mr. Friedman has not made a small fortune in Fairfax on luck alone; intelligence and ability have certainly contributed. Realizing this, I can only conclude that his mailer was intended to confuse.

Common sense may be the best antidote against confusion deliberately created. After all, zoning is simply a method whereby a city protects or improves its environment. There is no conspiracy against Mr. Friedman. An initiative action signed by 700 voters can hardly be called a secret operation, and surely, that many people do not dislike him.

My residence in Fairfax spans 25 years, roughly the period of Mr. Friedman's activities here. My past involvement in community affairs is typical of many citizens — committees, commissions, church. Mr. Friedman and I have never met, in part because he does not live in Fairfax. I consider this failure odd only because he has been a consistent factor in "politics," meaning our city council. Mr. Friedman apparently sees our town as a place to make money, but not to live. This is common but needs mentioning to show that interests of Mr. Friedman and of residents may be different.

We are learning of the need for open space. We are also learning about deferred costs caused by over-development. Fairfax could underwrite a greater profit for Mr. Friedman by rejecting commercial-recreation zoning. However, if this should happen, taxpayers should not be angry with school and sanitary district boards three or four years hence when taxes go up or bond issues are proposed.

Vietnam Remains An Issue In Terms Of Its People's Future

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edmund Muskie, Sen. George McGovern and most of the other Democratic candidates are continuing to make Vietnam a major issue.

They're right. It is an issue. It should be an issue and it will be right down to the voting.

Even though U.S. combat and casualties are steadily dwindling, even if all American forces are withdrawn by this fall, there is a real and significant difference between the policy of President Nixon and that of his principal critics.

That difference is what makes Vietnam an important factor in the election. That difference needs to be brought clearly and candidly into the open.

Here is the difference:

NIXON WANTS to give the people and the government of South Vietnam the best possible chance of successfully defending themselves against a Communist takeover. He would do this by continuing economic and arms aid after U.S. forces are withdrawn.

Muskie and McGovern want to end all American economic and arms aid after withdrawal even if the consequence of such a course means a Communist takeover.

The Nixon administration contends that a Communist victory will bring the ruthless mass massacre of those the Communists regard as their enemies.

The critics want desperately to believe that the course they offer would not bring such a blood bath. But they don't talk about it because they don't want the American people to think about it.

Some very impressive documentation has been put together for the House Internal Security Committee under the editorship of David Martin. Whether one is a critic or an admirer of the work of the committee, the evidence stands on its own merits.

STEPHEN T. HOSMER, a Rand Corp. analyst, says that the victorious Communists might limit political executions to 50,000 to 100,000 South Vietnamese.

Prof. P. J. Honey of London estimates that on the basis of past action Hanoi would liquidate a million of its enemies, perhaps many more.

Col. Tran Vac Dac, a North Vietnamese officer who defected after 24 years in the Communist movement, forecasts the killing of three million South Vietnamese.

Col. Le Xuan Chuyen, another such defector from the North, believes the number would reach five million.

Douglas Pike, the leading American authority on the Viet Cong, believes that Communist retribution would encompass several million victims. He adds: "Little of this would be known abroad. The Communists in Vietnam would create a silence. The world would call it peace."

THERE ARE FOUR precedents which suggest that a major massacre would take place in the event of a Communist takeover in South Vietnam.

The Soviet precedent: Robert Conquest, the British Sovietologist, writes that at least 20 million Russian people were executed or killed in other ways to strengthen the grip of the new Communist regime.

The Chinese precedent: Prof. Richard L. Walker, an American China scholar, estimates that communism in China from the first civil war (1927-1936) to today has cost a minimum of 34 million lives.

The North Vietnamese precedent: Joseph Buttinger, an Austrian Social Democrat, Bernard Fall, an American authority, and Gerard Tongas, a Frenchman, estimate the price of Ho Chi Minh's rule to be 550,000 lives in the north alone.

The Hue precedent: During the 26 days the North Vietnamese army held the city of Hue at the time of the Tet offensive, more than 5,000 South Vietnamese were shot or buried alive.

Dare the President's political opponents take responsibility for what these judgments suggest is likely to happen in the event of a Communist takeover?

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Population Growth Report Offers Fuel For Politicking

WASHINGTON — Those who cherish the idea that man is capable of mastering his own future can take heart briefly from an official federal report maintaining that the United States must slow or halt its population growth if its people are to look forward to tolerable lives in the years ahead. The study is not, this time, from some scientific ivory tower or ecologists' think-tank; this one is from the Establishment epitomized — set up by Congress, appointed by the President, chaired by John D. Rockefeller III.

But the heartening effect may be brief, because almost simultaneously we were given new evidence of how far man has yet to go toward controlling his own days on earth. It came in the form of a predictable attack on the report, delivered by the U.S. Catholic Conference even before the commission's detailed recommendations were disclosed. Just as predictable are forthcoming challenges from industries whose executives believe their future profits depend on steady population growth.

AS IS SO OFTEN the case, the key decision on whether this report turns out to be so much wishful thinking or the first step toward an enlightened national growth policy must be made by the President. And, on the record of Mr. Nixon's previous reaction to official reports that imply the slightest controversy, the prospect is not bright. Unfortunately, this is an election year, so it will be mildly surprising if the President acknowledges before mid-November that the commission he appointed even exists.

This commission on Population Growth and the American Future consists of senators, congressmen, businessmen, students, union officials, M.D.s, educators — Democrats and Republicans, specialists and laymen. Employing a professional staff, it spent two years working on its report. Only the first installment, disclosing its general conclusions and hinting broadly at its later recommendations, has been released so far. There is no hesitation at all in its finding that:

"There is hardly any social problem confronting this nation whose solution would be easier if our population were larger . . . accordingly, this commission has concluded that our country can no longer afford the uncritical acceptance of the population growth ethic that 'more is better' . . .

"The pluses seem to be on the side of slowing growth and eventually stopping it altogether. Indeed, there might be no reason to fear a decline in population once we are past the period of growth that is (already) in store. Neither the health ok our economy nor the welfare of individual business depend on continued population growth. In fact, the average person will be markedly better off in terms of traditional economic values if population growth slows down than if it resumes the pace of growth experienced in the recent past."

I QUOTE THESE passages verbatim because they are so unequivocal, and because they so directly contradict the traditional positions of some church and business spokesmen (I emphasize spokesmen, rather than rank-and-file churchgoers or workmen).

The report approaches head-on the widespread resentment of the population control movement by blacks and other minority groups who feel white, upper-class do-gooders in the movement are interested mainly in controlling them. "The idea that our population growth is primarily fueled by the poor and the minorities having lots of babies is a myth," it declares, producing figures to show that only 30 per cent of American childbearing beyond replacement needs was by blacks, Indians or Spanish-speakers. As those minorities move up the educational and economic scale, they tend, like majority Americans, to have smaller families. And, aligning precisely with that, the commission asserts that "slower population growth would enable us to provide a far better education for children at no increase in total costs."

The circular way in which improvement would grow out of improvement, once the population brakes were applied, should be obvious to any open-minded citizen.

Nevertheless, the mere citation of the groups is enough to make a politician's mouth water. If many blacks are opposed, and Catholic leaders are opposed, and business in general is opposed, think of what a lovely coalition they would make behind anyone facing a potentially close election. The temptation to cultivate them at the expense of the nation's future might be too much for any mortal officeholder to resist. Let us all now watch the President and find out.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Politicking By City Councils Increases As Election Nears

In the spring a city council's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of council salaries, employee pay hikes, fringe benefits and related matters.

With all this talk of money in the air, several city councils in Marin might well consider creating a new position: public relations flack for councilmen who aspire to higher public office or re-election.

And the stipend for the new post, at least in some cities, would very justly be paid to newspaper reporters who cover council meetings. Under this system, the reporter who uses the most inane, obviously politically motivated quotes in his stories would receive the lion's share of the money.

AS ELECTION TIME approaches many reporters are forced to conclude that some councilmen view them as their own personal political propagandists. One Southern Marin newsman recentgy studied the situation and concluded that, if political pitches were eliminated from council meetings, the time spent in these sessions could be cut from one-third to one-half, depending on the council.

Political pitches are usually interspersed throughout the meeting, but become most amusing after all residents have left the meeting and the chamber is empty of all but the council, some city officials and a reporter or two. At first a newsman may wonder, "What's this guy trying to prove, since there's no one here to hear him?" But he soon learns to whom the hopeful councilman is directing his remarks.

Pitches can be made on any topic, from sewer service fees to plans for realigning a street or for using gas funds. They usually follow a standard format and tend to begin in tediously recognizable ways:

"I don't think this (whatever is under discussion) would be fiscally responsible to the taxpayers of this city." (There are many variations to this pitch).

"What our city needs is more open space, more parks."

"I feel it is our duty to maintain the quality of life in this community."

"I think that each and every resident should be able to feel this city council is responsive to his needs and wishes."

"The people of --------- deserve better services."

"Before acting, we should get a feeling of what the community wants."

"We must hold (reduce) our tax rate."

THE SAUSALITO city council had a valuable lesson — which it will probably not take to heart — at a recent meeting when council members were forced to sit and listen to views from the audience for nearly three hours.

As the citizenry droned on and on, several councilmen began fidgeting, and others kept yawning, looked bored, ran their fingers through their hair in harassed fashion, and kept casting obvious and frequent looks at their watches.

People who must attend Sausalito City Council meetings — which even run until past midnight with even the most routine agenda — have long known it is not much fun to be a captive audience, listening to people who seem to be enchanted by their own voices.

Now the council knows how it feels to have the shoe on the other foot. But whether councilmen will learn from their experience is another question.

New-But-Old Look At China, And Real Meaning Of Ecology

Two fascinating articles in this week's Life magazine — I hope you have or will find time to read them both — "A famous journalist returns to see the world Mao made — Journey Back To Another China, by Theodore H. White." (Listen to his credentials. A summa cum laude in Chinese history from Harvard; at 24 China correspondent for Time, Life and Fortune. He spent six and a half years in Asia. He visited the near-mythical Communist headquarters of Mao and Chou in Yenan.)

How the man can write! "Twenty-seven years ago, in 1944, I had arrived in Yenan, the hill capital of the revolution, the day America first recognized Chinese Communism by sending an official emissary. The pilot sighted Yenan by the old yellow pagoda that was its landmark, swooped through gullies cut by the dark oval of caves, bounced down a rutted dirt runway and lurched to a stop. Out stepped Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, his chest glistening with medals. He perceived a ragamuffin honor guard in padded quilting and then to their absolute bafflement — warwhooped. Mao and Chou were a few minutes late. They jounced down from the hills in an ambulance, tumbled out, then trotted unceremoniously across the runway to greet the American envoy. We climbed into the ambulance. Passing a flock of sheep. Hurley volunteered he'd once been a cowboy. Mao responded he had once been a shepherd, and, trading jokes, they began their first negotiations in jovial goodwill . . . "

I THOUGHT THAT this would be interesting to those who may not have a chance to read the article, for a comparison with what they saw on T.V.

The other article, "Cradle of Life," was such a wonderful example of what "ecology" really is rather than the careless tossing around that is so indulged in these days. It seemed that the first paragraph would cause some straight thinking: "Lying on the borderline of land and sea, the thousands of square miles of tidal marsh that nestle in estuaries and bays from Maine to Texas are the richest spawning grounds of life in the U.S. Cultivated by tides that flood them twice a day and fertilized largely by their own decaying plants, these lush stretches of grass, creeks and salt-wet mud can produce five times the plant growth of well-tended wheat field. And the billions of organisms that live in the marshes — from tiny microbes to predatory minks and eagles — feed on the grass and each other in an ecological exchange of energy that knows no waste. Yet the marshes are commonly considered wastelands, and in the last 35 years a quarter of the nation's marshes have been destroyed by pollution, dredging or landfill. In fact they provide millions of tons of nutrients for our coastal waters — food up on which 90 per cent of the Atlantic's most important commercial species of fish depend for survival. And each year they are feeding and nesting grounds of millions of migrating birds."

ON THE FOLLOWING pages were described and pictured colorful scenes of the rich season cycle of life at the Parker River-Plum Island South estuary, 30 miles north of Boston, and its 8,400 acres of tidal marsh, broken by 70 miles of winding creeks, one of the largest remaining tidelands in New England.

More than $300,000 worth of clams are harvested from Massachusetts marsh each year. Some marshes can yield more protein per acre in shellfish than the best cattle-grazing land.

Young fish mature over summer in the marsh feeding grounds then head out to warmer waters when winter comes. The off-shore catch will be worth almost a hundred million dollars to the fishing industry and several hundred million dollars in trade for the sports fishing business.

From Canada and Greenland millions of south flying birds stop off for food and rest. During the October peak this Massachusetts marsh had 25,000 ducks and 6,000 geese at one time.

THIS SEEMS TO ME to be a real ecology concern. The constant harping on trivia is bound to the very people whosd help is needed at critical times.

One of our self-considered brightest political stars is fast talking himself into a corner. I intended to write about it today, but didn't.

Office Buildings Pass Review

The Novato Plan Review Committee has approved plans for two additional office buildings totaling 4,100 square feet at Indian Valley Medical Center, 1615 Hill Road.

Two other new buildings were approved by the committee in February, making a total of four new buildings planned at the center.

The committee, meeting Wednesday night, also approved plans for construction of two four-unit apartment buildings at 1109 and 1113 Third Street, submitted by William Tobin.

Ban Extended On Three Travel Areas

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department has decided to extend its ban on the use of U.S. passports for travel to North Korea, North Vietnam and Cuba for at least one more year.

The Supreme Court has ruled that the government cannot prevent a citizen from traveling anywhere, but the State Department regulation means that the traveler cannot use his passport as a means of gaining entry to the countries involved.

Novato Hopefuls Ponder Community's Character

By FRANK FARRARA

Novato City Council candidates took a look last night at the possibility of maintaining the character of Novato in the face of growth.

Candidates talked of ways to control growth, but none wanted to go as far as Petaluma which has limited development to 500 living units a year for at least five years.

Ten of the 11 candidates in the April 11 municipal election appeared before about 30 persons at a meeting sponsored by the Marin Country Club Estates and Domingo Canyon homeowners associations. Candidate Donald Richards, a school administrator, was absent.

Speaking for the audience, Leroy Syrop, a candidate in the June 6 election for the Novato Sanitary District board, posed the stickler: How can Novato be maintained as a semirural area when the general plan projects an eventual population of 150,000?

Fred F. Ruegg, a retired network executive, said it was important to plan for a population of 150,000 "but I don't think it's going to happen."

Edward T. Ryken, senior coordinating council director, called for coordination of the city, the water district, school district, fire district and sanitary district in planning for growth.

David Price Jones, an attorney, said the city has the ultimate authority and could limit growth by zoning, while Carlos M. Newton, a construction firm partner, said the city could "cut out wholesale annexations."

John C. Schoonover, auditing executive, said the city couldn't be semirural if it grew to a population of 150,000. As a planning commissioner, he has consistently opposed plans by developers which are over the maximum density set in the general plan, he said.

Anthony M. Gullotta, assistant county elections officer, said the 150,000 figure was established when there was an influx into the area and "I don't think it will hold true."

Daniel P. Donovan, an attorney, said the best way to control growth "is by proper planning and zoning and density standards. He said he didn't favor restricting building, with a loss of private rights, "because we haven't planned properly."

John N. Morrison, an investment firm owner, said if the city went too far in restrictions it might face court action. "I don't think you can confiscate property rights, but you can control."

Dorothy Young, an attorney, advocated a density of 2.4 dwelling units and said: "I'd like to see Novato grow just about the way it is."

Geoffrey J. Bywater, an 18-year-old student, called for a community where youth has a voice, and said: "We're willing to listen to you if you're willing to listen to us."

One unidentified resident said he wasn't concerned about "the semirural atmosphere," and wanted to know what the candidates would do about fixing city streets if they were elected.

"I'm tired of going over bumps in the road, who's going to patch them and pay for it?" he asked.

Bywater commended him for speaking out and said "as a whole the community doesn't do this."

Jones, an incumbent, said the voters had rejected a street bond issue and the city has instituted a 30-cent tax rate override for street work. Tamalpais Avenue, Center Road and Vallejo Avenue are scheduled for improvements, he reported. "The only real answer for streets is a bond measure and the citizens have to vote for this."

Donovan and Jones clashed on the creation of parks.

Rather than considering spending $500,000 for a 60-acre parcel, the city should consider smaller parks and "put the parks where the people are," Donovan said.

Jones said the city "will need at least one large park," and the land should be acquired now before it is developed.

The newly instituted bedroom tax could be used to provide smaller parks in the area of new developments, he said.

Ryken proposed that vacant school sites and vacant North Marin County Water District land be used at least temporarily for small parks.

Ruegg propsoed that when large developments come into the city, the developer could be required to provide small parks in the development.

Fact Sheet On Hilarita Housing Due

Residents of Tiburon soon will be mailed an information sheet from the Tiburon Ecumenical Association explaining its support of the Hilarita Housing Project, and inviting them to a community meeting to discuss the issue, according to Frank S. Evans, minister at the Tiburon Congregational Church.

"We are attempting to bring the community together," he said. "We want to provide a place to come and sit down and rationally discuss what we're doing."

He said he believed much of the community opposition to the project, an attempt to erect moderate income housing at the Hilarita site, is based on misinformation which the sheet and meeting will clear up.

Seven Tiburon residents last month filed a $2.9 million suit in Marin Superior Court to stop the development.

The meeting will be Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Congregational church, 145 Rockhill Drive.

It is jointly sponsored by the League of Women Voters, the Community Congregational Church, the Westminster Presbyterian Church, St. Stephen's Parish and the Tiburon Ecumenical Association. The association is a subgroup of the county ecumenical association.
